Army Ordnance Research

BY COL. PAUL N. GILLON, USA
Commanding Officer, Office of Ordnance
Research

THE Ordnance Corps program of sponsored basic research is now a little over three years old. Administered by the Office of Ordnance Research, which is located on the Duke University campus at Durham, N. C., the program is both strong and productive and the office a going concern.

The program comprises approximately 400 projects with an average dollar value of $10,000, being carried on at 126 universities in 40 states. These projects represent the successful candidates for support out of more than 1200 research proposals which OOR has received since it started in business.

The projects accepted for sponsorship fall within the four scientific areas of the Chemistry, Mathematics, Physics, and Basic Engineering, all fields clearly related to the Ordnance mission. Generally stated, the over-all mission of Ordnance is to insure that the military fighting forces who consume Ordnance items have continuously available, in the quantity necessary, the most effective combat materials that science and technology can provide. To achieve this objective the Ordnance Corps is organized to perform four essential functions: research and development, industrial, field service, and personnel and training. All of these functions are of coordinate importance in the accomplishment of the total Ordnance mission; however, the antecedent position of the research and development function is manifest. Similarly within that function it is clear that the quality and timeliness of the re-

Navy-Marine Chiefs In Reorg. Dispute

The Marine Corps, which in pre-Unification controversy once feared alleged Army intentions regarding a "second ground force," now is involved in reorganization differences with the Navy.

It is believed the Marine Corps will win—if not at the Pentagon, then ultimately on Capitol Hill.

The heart of the issue is how much command authority the Chief of Naval Operations shall have over the Marine Corps. The Navy wants more; the Marine Corps less.

Defense officials for obvious reasons are reluctant to discuss the Navy-Marine Corps conflict, particularly in view of the Congressional overtones.

The Marine Corps enjoys strong support on Capitol Hill, evidence of which is the fact that the Marine Corps, alone of the Services, has permanent legislation stipulating a minimum strength—3 divisions and 3 air wings.

It can be reported, however, that top officers of the Navy and Marine Corps, including Admiral Robert B. Carney, CNO, and General Lemuel Shepherd, Jr., Commandant, have differed during re-

Billion Dollar Reserve Plan Means Heavier Draft; Short Tours; Compulsory Service

SecDef Goes On Record

"If the civilians in the government get an increase, certainly the military people should."

With that assertion, made at a news conference this week, Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson has ended Pentagon pay fence-straddling.

The Services now know that if action is taken to raise the pay of the Government's civilian employees, Mr. Wilson will insist on similar consideration for those in uniform.

This means that apparently he is determined to prevent repetition of the situation where civilian employees last received a 10 per cent cost-of-living pay increase months in advance of the average 4 per cent pay raise for servicemen.

Mr. Wilson's statement came as reports told of plans for 10 per cent pay raise legislation for civilians.

(Editorial comment, page 346)

The Defense Department will announce momentarily a Reserve Forces plan which will:

1. Cost up to $1 billion per year.
2. Require heavier draft calls.
3. Necessitate increased Army and Marine Corps strength.
4. Provide six-month active duty tours for thousands of young men who then would be faced with compulsory Reserve or National Guard service.

The plan, still subject to last minute modification before its formal presentation to the National Security Council, is expected to be President Eisenhower's top priority legislative request to the 84th Congress.

As now formulated, the Pentagon proposal is said to have three salient advantages:

1. It will provide the Nation with "A Reserve," though admittedly not the best possible Reserve.
2. It will recognize the "equity" of service which the President has emphasized.
3. It is politically realistic.

The tentative Reserve Forces plan, coordinated under the energetic leadership of Assistant Defense Secretary Carter L.

Army Promotion Action: Capt. To Col.

The Army this week released the names of 234 majors promoted to temporary lieutenant colonel (page 360) with a cut-off date extending through 13 Sept. 1950.

Simultaneously, it was learned that the board to select lieutenant colonels for temporary advancement to colonel has completed its work, while plans are being completed for new selection boards to captain and major — probably to meet next month instead of in January as previously announced.

Additional promotions to lieutenant colonel will be announced through the end of 1954 and in to 1955.

As for the boosts to colonel, unofficial speculation is that between 700 and 800 lieutenant colonels, out of about 1300 who were eligible, have been named for higher rank. Names will not be released until actual promotions are published in Special Orders, which will extend through the spring of next year.

Defense Dept. Will Ask More '56 Money Than Was Voted For Current Fiscal Year

Defense Department budget requests for Fiscal Year 1956, now nearing completion at the Pentagon with probably the least inter-Service friction since Unification, will ask Congress for at least $1 billion more in new money than was voted for the current fiscal year.

This means the FY '56 defense budget estimate of the Eisenhower Administration will approximate the January 1954 request for $30.9 billion in obligational authority for the Armed Forces.

Congress actually voted about $28.8 billion.

Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson was asked at a Pentagon news conference this week if the Pentagon would request at least $29 billion in new money during the first session of the 84th Congress, which convenes in January.

"I would say more than that," the Secretary responded.

For FY '55, which ends next 30 June, the Administration asked $8.2 billion for the Army, $9.8 billion for the Navy, and $11.2 billion for the new Air Force in new obligational authority.

Congress cut this to about $7 billion for the Army, $10 billion for the Navy and $11 billion for the Air Force.

Defense expenditures for the current year, however, are considerably higher than the new obligational authority

PENTAGON WILL DROP "FRINGE BENEFITS"

The Defense Department will abandon use of the term "fringe benefits" in Capitol Hill presentations next year. The reason: Secretary Charles E. Wilson doesn't like it.

He said so at a news conference on 23 Sept., commenting that "I would like somebody to think of a better name." On 2 Oct. an editorial in THE JOURNAL called attention to Mr. Wilson's dissatisfaction and his invitation for suggestions.

Since that time, readers around the world have agreed with the Secretary that the term "fringe benefits" leaves much to be desired. At the same time, they have suggested numerous variants, a compilation of which is published on the next page of this issue.

Services Say Nix On Fringe Benefits

HEREWITH for Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson's consideration are suggestions from JOURNAL readers regarding a substitute for the term "Fringe Benefits." At the bottom of the column is a related letter from an Army major. He observes that the Services should do away with the word "fringe," which, he relates, "can better be associated with something hanging from a buggy top."

Fringe Benefits and Buggy Tops

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson doesn't like the word "fringe" associated with the word "benefits." Can't say as I blame him. The word "fringe" can better be associated with something hanging from a buggy top.

The word "benefit" as defined in Mr. Webster's book means "gift." A gift is a present or something of value received without cost. Something for nothing. If we put a fringe on a gift it then becomes a gift with all the trimmings. Best the word "benefit" be eliminated along with fringe.

The Old Corporal had something when he said "Nothing is too good for the troops and nothing is what they will get." Those officers and men who served in the Army when leaves were without pay, when dependents moved as best they could by commercial transportation at the expense of the individual officer and man and when an officer, out of his salary bought his required arms and equipment, saber, revolver, field glasses, mess kit, bedding roll and a field officer, if in the mounted service, his horse complete with horse equipment, if living or serving today would call the so-called "fringe benefits" "lucrative returns." The retired Colonel said "When Gen. MacArthur was a Second Lieutenant the 'fringe benefits' constituted a pat on the back."

The word benefit as the Army uses it means "compensating," "to make up for," "making up loss." Eliminating the word would constitute elimination of all allowances, travel, quarters and rations. It could be done by raising the pay sufficient to compensate the loss of allowances thus equalizing the pay of the married and unmarried. This would require much legislative and administrative action to say nothing of the time it would take so with that in mind recommend we just drop the "fringe" for the present and call the benefits "Army Benefits." After all, the Army is giving them and we are getting them.

Gen. Brandt TTAFF Chief, Succeeds Gen. Eubank

Maj. Gen. Carl A. Brandt, USAF, director of the maintenance engineering section at Air Materiel Command Headquarters, Wright-Patterson AFB, Ohio, will become commander of the Technical Training Air Force about 3 Jan.

He will succeed retiring Maj. Gen. E. L. Eubank, USAF, who has been TTAFF commander since 1951. Rounding out a 37-year-old military career, General Eubank will retire 31 Dec. He is credited with establishing and maintaining 200 technical courses.

AIR DEFENSE COMMAND

Thirty high ranking U. S. Naval officers attended a recent Continental Air Defense Command Conference at Ent AFB, Colorado Springs. Invited by CONAD commander General Benjamin W. Chidlaw, USAF, the Navy officials were briefed on the mission and operation of the joint command. Left to right are Maj. Gen. C. C. Jerome, USMC; General Chidlaw; RADM. D. V. Gallery, USN, chief Naval reserve training; and RADM. I. E. Hobbs, USN, chief of staff Air Pacific Command.

Housing Loans Begin To Roll; Thousands Expected To Seek Eligibility Certificates

The Army, Navy, Air Force and Marine Corps have kicked off implementation of new 4½ per cent home loan benefits for servicemen with over two years' service.

Regulations are in the hands of commanders in the field or are on the way. They will be dated either on or before the 15 Nov. deadline set by Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson.

The Coast Guard several weeks ago got the jump on the Uniformed Services by issuing the first certificates of eligibility. This was possible because the Coast Guard is part of the Treasury Department and was able to gain speedier approval of its regulations than was the case with the four Services at the Pentagon.

However, the program is now under way in all the Services. It was reported late this week that upwards of 25 certificates of eligibility have been issued in the Air Force. Believed to be the first recipient of an Air Force certificate is Lt. Col. William W. Robertson, USAF, assigned to the Office of Legislative Liaison at the Pentagon.

The Navy said that Aviation Machinist second class John J. Harper of the Naval Air Station in Washington, D. C., is probably the first Navy man to receive a certificate of eligibility.

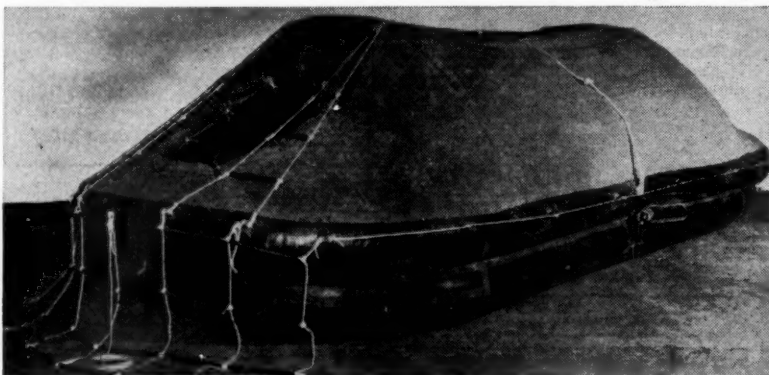

As THE JOURNAL went to press, announcement was expected momentarily of completion of loan arrangements by a member of the Army, Navy, Air Force or Marine Corps. Pentagon authorities said, however, that normally it will take at least 30 days from the time a certificate of eligibility is issued until financial arrangements are completed.

Defense officials anticipate that thousands of servicemen will apply for the eligibility certificates, although they add that in many cases military personnel may be a bit surprised at the cash outlay that will still be required for the 5 per cent down payment, settlement charges, moving costs, etc.

Nonetheless, there is no doubt that many hundreds of homes will be purchased in the months immediately ahead as a result of the new home loan benefits.

Speedy action on issuance of the certificates of eligibility will be possible. The Services have delegated authority for handling this basic step in procurement of home loans to the echelon where personnel records are maintained.

Entire Fleet Will Get New CO<sub>2</sub> Life Boats Within Three Years, Bureau of Ships Says

The Navy has launched issuance to the fleet of a new CO<sub>2</sub> life boat. Estimates are that it will take about three years to complete the job.

Last week's issue of THE JOURNAL published a related story and photograph of the Navy's new life jacket.

The inflatable, double-bottomed, boat is equipped with double insulating canopy which provides protection from extremes of heat and cold. In tests conducted in Newfoundland, body heat raised the temperature to a comfortable 70 degrees after a group of volunteers had sealed themselves within the protective canopy.

When packed, along with 100 pounds of survival equipment, the life boat measures 2 x 3 x 5 feet. Inflated, the boat measures 15 feet in length and seven feet wide and provides three and one-half feet of head room. It inflates within 30 seconds after the release cable is pulled and is equipped to accommodate 15 survivors.

Survival equipment includes 50 pounds of canned drinking water, desalting kits, 30 pounds of rations, first aid kit, signal kit, fluorescein sea marker, sponges, flashlight, whistle, and a jack knife. Four paddles, a life boat repair kit, two hand inflation pumps, and a sea anchor are also included as operational equipment.

The boat's bright-orange canopy reflects heat and assists in attracting passing ships or aircraft.

Design modifications which will improve the present 15-person CO<sub>2</sub> inflatable life boat, Mark 3, are now undergoing Navy evaluation.

Some of the modifications are:

1. The use of a nylon fabric in place of cotton to increase strength and resistance to wear, and to decrease weight,
2. A wind scoop to increase ventilation in tropical areas,
3. A rain-water collector,
4. A radar reflective curtain for long range detection by ships and aircraft,
5. An improved floor to permit more effective bailing of the boat, and,
6. A provision for reducing the volume of air to be heated when only a few survivors are embarked in the boat in cold weather.

USS Forrestal Set For 11 Dec. Launching

The USS Forrestal (CVA 59), first of a new and larger class of fast attack aircraft carriers, will be launched 11 December at the Newport News Shipbuilding and Drydock Co., Va.

Mrs. James V. Forrestal, widow of the first Secretary of Defense, will sponsor the vessel named in honor of her husband. Navy Secretary Charles S. Thomas will be the principal speaker.

The crew will be comprised of 466 officers and 3,360 men. The Forrestal will carry approximately 90 planes and is equipped to fuel both jet and conventional reciprocating engine planes.

Commissioning date is slated for Fall 1955.

Gen. O'Donnell Aids Olympics

Lt. Gen. Emmett O'Donnell, jr., USAF, Deputy Chief of Staff, Personnel, Hqs. USAF, will represent the Armed Forces on the United States Olympics Games Executive Committee.

A former assistant coach at the U. S. Military Academy, General O'Donnell will help determine policy matters pertaining to U. S. participation in the forthcoming Pan American and Olympic Games.

Capt. Edward Sperry Named Cheney Winner

General Nathan F. Twining, USAF, Chief of Staff, has named Capt. Edward G. Sperry, USAF, as the 1953 recipient of the Cheney Award, which includes a cash award of $500.

Captain Sperry, who recently helped set a record for high altitude parachute jumps (see page 344), was designated to receive the Cheney Award for his "gallantry and self-sacrifice in a humanitarian interest in connection with the testing of a downward ejection seat from a B-47 aircraft flying at an indicated airspeed of 450 miles per hour."

The 26-year-old captain is chief of the Special Projects Section of the Aero Medical Laboratory at Wright Air Development Center, Ohio.

A graduate of the Airborne School at Ft. Benning, Ga., Captain Sperry is credited with obtaining "information vital to the safety of Air Force personnel" as a result of his participation in the ejection seat test.

A companion jumper had sustained major injuries in a similar test and Captain Sperry himself was "also severely injured and paid in terms of pain and incapacitation," according to the official citation accompanying the award.

NAVY SECRETARY CHARLES S. THOMAS (left) is welcomed to Capodichino airport, Naples, by Lt. Gen. Lawrence C. Craigie, USAF, Acting Commander in Chief Allied Forces Southern Europe.

Ordnance Sponsors 400 Research Projects

search phase is vital since the development portion thereof depends for its validity, vitality and effectiveness upon the vigor and quality of the research effort. It is for this reason that even though the basic research program sponsored by Ordnance constitutes but a small fraction of the total Ordnance research and development effort, nevertheless the Ordnance Corps regards that program as an exceptionally important fraction.

It has frequently been stated that American mastery of science and invention, and our ability to put our know-how to work in the industrial assembly line, account for our present world economic leadership. This truth, applicable to the manufacture of civilian automobiles and military tanks, to civilian TV sets and military radar, depends for its continuance upon an expanding reservoir of fundamental knowledge. The discovery of such knowledge normally begins in the academic area as pure research, then passes through the stage of applied research into engineering, and then, via the assembly line, to the consumer.

Contract Research

The Ordnance Corps implements this general truth by providing for the conduct of a certain amount of basic research within its own laboratories, plus a somewhat larger amount conducted under contract by university scientists. It is this university program that is administered by the Office of Ordnance Research. Both of these basic research efforts—the internal and external—in addition to creating the possibility that important new scientific knowledge may be forthcoming, provide an indispensable link between scientists whose attention is focussed on the frontiers of science and those engaged in application of that science in the development of new and better military equipment.

The pathway to Ordnance Corps sponsorship is, in a qualitative sense, rugged. The scientific merit of each proposal, and its relatedness to matters of Ordnance interest, are rigorously scrutinized. By means of the National Research Council in Washington the proposals are sent to highly selected scientific referees for comment. The research work proposed is of such an advanced nature that the number of individuals capable of appraising it may be small. Consequently the evaluation by the NRC referees for scientific merit is most important. Concurrently scientists in the arsenals and other Ordnance scientific activities are also consulted. Review by the latter looks particularly toward the relation of the proposed research subject to matters of Ordnance concern. Based upon these two main sources of appraisal it is possible to select projects of highest scientific interest, to be carried out by the best investigators that this country possesses.

Distribution of Results

An isolated statistic that bears upon the quality of the OOR-administered program is the fact that at the 126th National Meeting of the American Chemical Society, held in New York City on 12-17 Sept., the program listed 45 scientists who are chief investigators on Ordnance sponsored basic research projects. These individuals were scheduled to read a total of 56 papers. Another index is the volume of scientific papers appearing in the many journals, based upon work that the Ordnance Corps has sponsored. These articles give wide circulation to the results of the work. Direct distribution of project reports to selected distributees adds another link between accomplishment of basic knowledge and its exploitation by other scientific workers.

Existence of the Office of Ordnance Research, and of the Ordnance program, makes possible support of research in new fields of science which are thereby brought to the forefront of attention and awareness of Ordnance scientific administrators and research workers. Projects in fields such as operations research, human engineering, vehicular mobility, all newer areas being subjected to a fundamental approach, are examples of this type of influence. The theories stemming from such projects bear directly upon subsequent developmental projects.

If direct project support by Ordnance creates a strong link between military scientific effort and university scientist, other mechanisms ancillary to the projects themselves further stimulate continuous gestation of fundamental science into applied research and development. During the past year OOR has staged a number of successful symposia, which have usually been scheduled a day or so before the meeting of some established scientific society, thus exploiting the scheduled presence of numerous scientists at a given city. These symposia produced extremely spirited discussions of important scientific problems of mutual interest by scientists from industry, universities, and government laboratories. Each group acquired increased awareness of the scientific interests and problems of the other.

Cross-Fertilization

Other meetings have been held where discussions have been directed toward scientific problems of peculiar interest to Ordnance scientists and the chief investigators of Ordnance sponsored basic research projects. These compact gatherings have provided excellent opportunity for cross-fertilization of ideas. In several instances the arsenals or other Ordnance technical establishments have found it advisable to retain various university people thus contacted as consultants on other scientific problems of that installation. This type of stimulus is probably best obtained as an adjunct to a program of research sponsored and administered by the military agency itself, a fact that is overlooked by those who occasionally come forward with the idea that a single super-agency be created, either inside or outside of the Department of Defense, to direct the scientific research program essential to National Defense. Diminished immediacy of contact between military and university scientists, as well as lessened cogency of scientific explorations sponsored, in terms of the military mission, would result from the formation of such a single agency.

A number of positive "success stories" have attended the projects supported to date. One project in aromatic silicon compounds has advanced lubrication science by great strides. Another, in plastic deformation, has produced a by-product in the form of a new technique in x-ray analysis of metals. Still another, on arc discharge through a liquid, led to production of a new, intense light source of short duration which is very useful in ballistics research, and produced the basic information necessary to develop an electric ignition system for mono-propellants. There is, to be sure, no magic touchstone in basic research; but tangible consequences do frequently follow, sometimes only after years of post-discovery contemplation. Maxwell's mathematical equations for electromagnetic propagation, formulated in the 1860s, supported the radio industry of the 1920s.

To sum up, Ordnance via its program of sponsored basic research has a continuing participation in, or listening point at, the frontiers of scientific thought. The Office of Ordnance Research is achieving measurable success in guiding the selection of the areas of this participation, and in matching impedances between the various scientific and administrative groups concerned. All of these groups in this cooperative effort are attaining growing awareness of each other's potential as co-partners in solving the problem of national security through scientific strength.

Dispute Over Marine Autonomy Brews

cent weeks on the relationship of the two service chiefs.

That there has been dispute—however much it is being covered up—is evidenced in a letter (complete text herewith) sent on 16 Nov. by Acting Navy Secretary Thomas G. Gates, Jr., to Senator Mike Mansfield (D-Mont.), a Marine Corps enthusiast.

Mr. Gates' communication reveals that although the Navy Reorganization Plan was submitted and approved by Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson last April, it has not yet been possible—seven months later—to complete a final draft of crucial General Order No. 5.

General Order No. 5 provides "Policies and Principles Governing the Distribution of Authority and Responsibility for the Administration of the Naval Establishment."

The Committee on Organization, of which Mr. Gates was chairman, said in its report dated 16 April that General Order No. 5 should be revised in several particulars, including the need "to clarify the responsibilities of the Commandant of the Marine Corps to the Secretary of the Navy and responsibilities and relationships with the Chief of Naval Operations."

Interestingly, nine days before the Committee's report was released, Mr. Gates, serving then as Acting Secretary of the Navy in the absence of Mr. Robert B. Anderson, preparing to become Deputy Defense Secretary, sent a memorandum to Admiral Carney and General Shepherd.

This memorandum, dated 7 April, concerned relationship between the Navy and Marine Corps.

The fact that the Secretary of the Navy has still not been able to achieve agreement on revision of General Order No. 5, as recommended by the Committee on Organization last April, shows the intensity of the current conflict.

Admiral Carney proposes that the Marine Corps Commandant be responsible to the Secretary of the Navy for the administration of the Marine Corps and for its command, except for elements included in a unified command (such as in Korea) or assigned to the Operating Forces or Shore Establishment.

The Marine Corps, it is reported, feels that the emphasis on "administrative" responsibilities would tend to make the Commandant more like the head of a Bureau, like Yards and Docks, rather than the head of a separate service.

The fact that the CNO proposed to make the Operating Forces and Shore Establishment of both the Navy and Marine Corps synonymous also is causing concern in the Marine Corps, since the CNO would be responsible for everything.

Although the argumentation is complex, with much depending on interpretation of words, the Marine Corps is said to feel that the current dispute is vital to its future. And in this attitude, as reflected in statements by Senator Mansfield and others, there is apparently considerable agreement at the Capitol.

At the Pentagon, Deputy Defense Secretary Anderson probably is inclined to go along with the Marine Corps position, since when he was Navy Secretary he made a specific point to establish more clear-cut lines of authority directly from the Navy Secretary to the Commandant of the Marine Corps.

On the other hand, it is believed that Navy Secretary Charles S. Thomas is more inclined to side with Admiral Carney in feeling that since the CNO has the overall responsibility for the fighting trim of the Naval Establishment, including the Marine Corps, he must be given commensurate authority.

In view of the well-known attitude of the House Armed Services Committee toward giving the Marines as much authority as possible—Chairman-to-be Carl Vinson (D-Ga.) has advocated full JCS membership for the Commandant—there's a good chance that unless the present dispute is resolved in speedy fashion at the Defense Department that a Congressional inquiry may be launched next year.

Following is the text of Secretary Gates' letter to Senator Mansfield and his memorandum to Admiral Carney and General Shepherd:

MR. GATES' LETTER

November 16, 1954

Dear Senator:

The Secretary of Defense has referred to me your letter of November 9th in which you raise certain questions regarding the relationship between the Chief of Naval Operations and the Commandant of the Marine Corps.

Subsequent to the receipt of your letter, other letters from interested persons, both within and outside the Congress, on the same subject have been directed to both the Secretary of Defense and to this department. Furthermore, an interest in the matter has been expressed by representatives of the press.

In view of this wide interest, we have decided the interest of the services would be best served if the administrative action of the Secretary of the Navy were released for the benefit of the other persons who have inquired on the same subject, and also be issued to representatives of the press.

"AUTONOMOUS SUBSIDIARY"

Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson was asked about the Navy-Marine Corps dispute at his Pentagon news conference this week. The Secretary recalled that he had once said "the Marine Corps was a 100 per cent autonomous subsidiary of the Navy." Beyond referring to Mr. Gates' letter to Senator Mansfield, the Secretary made no additional comment on the situation in his meeting with newsmen.

Probably your interest stems from the fact that within the Department of the Navy we are in the process of rewriting General Order No. 5 to reflect the recommendations of the Committee on Organization of the Department of the Navy, which was dated 16 April 1954, and approved by the Secretary of the Navy and the Secretary of Defense. A final draft of this General Order has not as yet been completed, and discussions concerning its format and language are still in process.

As you have noted in your letter, the report of the Committee on Organization of the Department of the Navy referred to an administrative action by the Secretary of the Navy, and you have requested a copy of this document. This letter, dated 7 April 1954, is attached hereto for your information.

I trust that if there are further questions, you will not hesitate to call upon me.

Sincerely yours,

s/

Thomas S. Gates, Jr.

MEMORANDUM

From: Secretary of the Navy
To: Chief of Naval Operations
Commandant of the Marine Corps
Subj: Relationship between the U. S. Navy and U. S. Marine Corps

1. General Order No. 5 establishes the basic relationship between the Chief of Naval Operations and the Commandant of the Marine Corps.

2. In further amplification of this order, the following statements of policy are applicable:

a. The Marine Corps, while not a separate service in the sense of the Army, Navy, and Air Force, is a unique service and forms an integral part of the Department of the Navy. Because of its specialized mission and objectives, it is distinct from a board, bureau or office of the Department, and yet is an inseparable part of a complete whole comprising the Naval Establishment.

b. The Chief of Naval Operations is the senior military officer in the Naval Establishment. He commands the operating forces of the Navy. He is the naval executive to the Secretary of the Navy for the conduct of appropriate activities of the Naval Establishment.

c. The responsibilities of the Chief of Naval Operations in his capacity as Naval executive to the Secretary of the Navy shall attach insofar as the Marine Corps is concerned only to those areas assigned by the Secretary of the Navy.

d. The Commandant of the Marine Corps

U. S. Army

Army EM May Volunteer For Missile Training

Army enlisted personnel stationed in this country who meet certain specifications are now eligible to volunteer for training and subsequent assignment to guided missile battalions and their direct support companies.

As outlined in Circular 120, applicants must not be slated for overseas duty, stabilized as a result of Service schooling, under court martial charges, in basic training, or attending Service schools other than those from which withdrawal for this program is either authorized or directed.

Several groups of courses are offered, some of which will be taught at the Artillery School, Ft. Bliss, Tex., and others which will be administered by the Chief of Ordnance.

Gen. Weyher Will Head Ordnance Weapons Com.

The Army will establish an Ordnance Weapons Command at the Rock Island, Ill., Arsenal on 1 Jan. under Brig. Gen. T. A. Weyher, USA, arsenal commander.

Maj. Gen. E. L. Cummings, USA, Chief of Ordnance, said the single field command will be responsible for direction of development, procurement, production, maintenance and major aspects of supply management of many of the Army's complex weapons systems.

The new command will also include the Watertown Arsenal and Springfield Armory, both in Massachusetts.

Formation of the new command will have little effect upon the personnel of the arsenals. The Command Headquarters will draw upon facilities and services at Rock Island Arsenal.

Establishment of this command furthers the action by Army Ordnance in setting up field responsibility for appropriate categories of Ordnance Materiel. Among others are: Ordnance Ammunition Command, Joliet, Ill.; Ordnance Tank Automotive Command, Detroit, Mich., and Redstone Arsenal for Guided Missiles, Huntsville, Ala.

Lt. Col. Elliott Readies Corporal for NATO Duty

Lt. Col. Glenn P. Elliott, USA, has assumed command of the 259th Field Artillery Missile Battalion at Ft. Bliss, Tex. He succeeded Lt. Col. Erwin H. Druley, USA, assigned to staff duties in the 2d Guided Missile Battalion there.

The 259th, which is equipped with Corporal missiles, is slated for duty in Europe, the first Corporal unit tabbed for overseas assignment. Before his new post, Colonel Elliott attended a guided missile course in the Antiaircraft and Guided Missiles Branch of The Artillery School at Bliss.

FT. HOOD, TEX.—Army Secretary Robert T. Stevens last week presented to Lt. Gen. Bruce C. Clarke, USA, an Oak Leaf Cluster to the DSM in a brief ceremony held at the U. S. Army Hospital. General Clarke is presently recuperating from an illness contracted in Korea and expects to go in December to his new assignment as Commanding General United States Army Pacific, with headquarters at Honolulu, Hawaii.

ARMY AVIATION GETS PUBLICATION

A monthly publication for the Army aviation field has been approved with responsibility for editing assigned to The Army Aviation School, Camp Rucker, Ala. First issue of the Army-wide periodical will be published 1 Feb., 1955.

The mission of the publication, titled "Aviation Digest Of The Army" with copyright pending, is to disseminate to military personnel concerned with Army aviation "Information of an operational or functional nature, concerning Army aviation safety and aircraft accident prevention, training, maintenance, operations, research and development, aviation medicine, and other related data."

Articles of Army-wide interest are solicited for publication in the periodical from military personnel, civilians, and commercial enterprises. Correspondence pertaining to the magazine should be addressed to: Editor-in-Chief, "Aviation Digest Of The Army," Army Aviation School, Camp Rucker, Alabama. Direct communication is authorized.

Col. Rogers Heads Command

Col. Glenn F. Rogers, USA, has assumed command of the First Armored Division's Support Command at Ft. Hood, Tex., from Lt. Col. Frank M. Muller, USA, who is now executive officer.

Colonel Rogers came to the First Armored Division from the office of the Assistant Chief of Staff, G-3, Department of the Army. He and his wife, Mary Ellen, have three children, Julia B., Glenn F., Jr., and John R.

Colonel Muller's father, Col. W. G. Muller, USA-Ret., lives in San Francisco.

Col. Hullinghorst Fills No. 2 Post At School

Col. Robert L. Hullinghorst, MC, USA, has assumed duties as Assistant Commandant of the Army Medical Service Graduate School at Walter Reed Army Medical Center, Washington, D. C.

Previously, he was Acting Chief of the Research Division, Armed Forces Institute of Pathology.

M/Sgt. Sweeney to WPI

M/Sgt. Ernest M. Sweeney has been assigned to the Signal Corps ROTC unit at Worcester Polytechnic Institute, Mass.

Sergeant Sweeney enlisted in the Army in 1918 when only 14. He served with the 37th Combat Engineers, and was gassed and wounded twice before he reached the age of 15. During WW II, Sergeant Sweeney served in the Pacific Theatre with the 19th Armored Amphibious Group. His son, Sgt. Earl M. Sweeney, Jr., is assigned to the 1st Armored Division at Ft. Hood, Tex.

Army Warrant Officer Wins Mexican Plaudits

The Army Attache in Mexico City has sent to the Pentagon a letter of commendation for CWO Walter R. Davis, who has devoted much of his leisure time during the past few years to musical activities in Mexico.

Mr. Davis, a Regular Army career warrant officer, is a founding member of the Mexican Composers' Center whose purpose is to make known the work of contemporary Mexican composers in the U. S. and vice versa.

The first concert sponsored by the group included choral work by CWO Davis. He recently was named the U. S. member of the Musical Advisory Panel of the Mexican-American Institute of Cultural Affairs.

Unit Histories Urged

The Army urged recently the further production of battle and peacetime histories of its various military units.

In AR 220-345, the Army pointed out that the histories, which may range from a single period to the entire life of the unit, should be prepared by the units themselves "mainly for reasons of esprit de corps and morale." These histories should not be confused with historical reports and annual histories prepared by the Army, the directive stated.

Col. Leonard Weapons Chief

Col. Charles F. Leonard, Jr., USA, has assumed duties as director of The Infantry School's Weapons Department at Ft. Benning, Ga. He succeeds Col. Thos. Mifflin, USA, who has been named the school's deputy assistant commandant.

Colonel Leonard came to Ft. Benning from Korea where he had served as commander of the 27th Infantry Regiment, 25th Division, and deputy chief of staff, I Corps headquarters since 1953.

What's up in Styling? Power? Performance?

Thrill of the year is Buick

OF course there's a fresh, new-day note to its styling, from that gleaming Wide-Screen Grille to the smart sweep of that new tail assembly.

Of course there's a new power beneath that graceful bonnet—a new high of 188 hp in the low-price SPECIAL—a new high of 236 hp in the CENTURY, SUPER and ROADMASTER.

But the big thrills go even deeper in these 1955 Buicks.

We took a tip from aeronautics

When we tell you that these eager new Buicks use the modern airplane's principle of "variable pitch" propulsion, we mean that literally.

As any aeronautical engineer will tell you, one of the greatest boons to aviation has been a propeller that uses one "pitch" of its blades for take-off and fast climbing —another "pitch" for gas-saving in the cruising range.

*And now Buick engineers have applied this pitch-changing principle to Dynaflo Drive.**

A new sensation in driving

What happens when the little blades of the "stator"—deep inside a Dynaflo Drive—change their pitch like the blades of a plane propeller?

The answer is waiting for you now—in the handsomest, ablest and highest-powered Buicks that ever greeted a new year.

So what are you waiting for? Better get behind the wheel of a 1955 Buick—and be up to date on the greatest advance in years.

Navy's New Antiaircraft Missile Demonstrated

A successful demonstration of the Navy's new antiaircraft weapon, the supersonic guided missile Terrier, was completed last week aboard the converted battleship, USS Mississippi, during the air defense phase of the Atlantic Fleet's largest post-war exercise, LANTFLEX 1-55.

The slim, needle-nose missile is designed to intercept aircraft at much longer ranges and higher altitude than conventional antiaircraft weapons under any conditions of visibility. It is capable of being fired from either shipboard or ground stations.

Because of the high percentage of successful flights in the Terrier's test program, almost all launchings against target drone aircraft have been made by dummy missiles that did not carry explosive warheads. The dummy signals a "kill" by releasing a puff of smoke near the target plane. Even without warheads, the missile has smashed several targets by direct collision.

Among those who witnessed the tests from the deck of the Mississippi were Donald A. Quarles, Assistant Secretary of Defense for Research and Development; Admiral Robert B. Carney, Chief of Naval Operations; Vice Adm. R. P. Briscoe, Deputy Chief of Naval Operations (Fleet Operations and Readiness); Rear Adm. M. F. Schoeffel, Chief of the Navy Bureau of Ordnance; and Rear Adm. Harold D. Baker, Commander, Operational Development Force.

Selection Boards Set Up By Navy To Pick Reserve Line And Staff Corps Officers

Selection boards to pick all ranks of Naval Reserve officers for advancement will convene between 30 Nov. 1954 and 17 May 1955.

The first board, which will recommend Reserve Line captains for two-star rank, will meet on 30 November.

Selection boards to name commanders and lieutenant commanders are slated for 4 Jan. 1955. Recommendations for promotion of lieutenants will be made by boards convening 15 Feb. 1955; lieutenants (jg) will be picked by boards which will meet on 3 May 1955.

Line and Staff WAVES in the grade of lieutenant commander will be considered by boards on 4 Jan. 1955, and those in the grade of lieutenant and lieutenant (jg), on 3 May and 17 May 1955.

Those eligible for consideration are:

1. Officers on inactive duty in an active status in the Naval Reserve who have earned a minimum of 12 retirement points during fiscal year 1954;

2. Officers on active duty in the Training and Administration of Naval Reserve program;

3. Officers in the rank of captain, commander, lieutenant commander and lieutenant who reported for duty on or after 1 July; and lieutenants (jg) who report for active duty after 1 Jan. 1955.

Officers who were previously considered by active duty boards since 1 July are not eligible.

The register numbers of the junior officers in each promotion zone, as carried in the 1 April 1953 Naval Reserve Register are:

LINE—rear admiral, 121; captain, 799; commander, 30761; lieutenant commander, 74356.

MEDICAL CORPS—rear admiral, none; captain, 232; commander, 2304; lieutenant commander, 3584.

SUPPLY CORPS—rear admiral, none; captain, 42; commander, 2171; lieutenant commander, 5439.

CHAPLAIN CORPS—rear admiral, none; captain, 6; commander, 522; lieutenant commander, 531.

CIVIL ENGINEER CORPS—rear admiral, none; captain, 444; commander, 1439; lieutenant commander, 2067.

DENTAL CORPS—rear admiral, none; captain, 28; commander, 1856; lieutenant commander, 2365.

MEDICAL SERVICE CORPS—rear admiral, none; captain, none; commander, 148; lieutenant commander, 498.

NURSE CORPS—commander, 82; lieutenant commander, 267.

The promotion zone for lieutenants has not yet been established. The tentative zone, the Navy said, includes all lieutenants (jg), with dates of rank of 2 June 1952 and earlier.

Staff Boards To Pick LCDrs. Meet On 30 Nov.

The Navy will convene Staff Corps selection boards to pick lieutenants for advancement to lieutenant commander on 30 November.

Officers eligible for consideration are those in or senior to the promotion zones on the active list of the Regular Navy and Naval Reserve on active duty.

All promotion zones for Regular Staff Corps lieutenants terminate with the junior officer whose running mate's signal number is senior to 16956.

The junior Naval Reserve officer in each corps has the following register number: Medical, 3572; Supply, 5411; Civil Engineer, 1907; Dental, 527; Chaplain, 529; and Medical Service, 430.

Reserve officers who reported for active duty after 30 June, WAVES, TARS, and Nurses will not be considered by the boards, the Navy said.

Capt. Schantz Heads School

Capt. Curtiss W. Schantz, DC, USN, has assumed duties as Commanding Officer of the Naval Dental School, Bethesda, Md.

He relieved RADM. Ralph W. Taylor, DC, USN, who has been named Inspector of Naval Dental Activities.

Captain Schantz reported to his new assignment from Annapolis where he was Dental Officer at the U. S. Naval Academy.

Naval Exhibit Opens

A new exhibition publicizing the contributions of the military engineer to sea power was placed on display this week at the Truxtun-Decatur Naval Museum in Washington, D. C.

Sponsored by the Society of American Military Engineers in cooperation with The Naval Historical Foundation, the exhibit features displays by the Army, Navy, Coast Guard and the U. S. Coast and Geodetic Survey.

This is the 15th exhibition of the Truxtun-Decatur Naval Museum since its opening in 1950. The current display will be shown until 27 Feb. 1955.

USMC Selection Board Meets To Pick 3557 Cpts.

A selection board to pick first lieutenants for advancement to the rank of captain has convened at Marine Corps Headquarters.

Headed by Brig. Gen. John C. Munn, USMC, the 14-man board is authorized to select 3454 unrestricted officers, 84 LDO's and 19 SDO's.

Five per cent of the selections could be made from below the promotion zone which terminates with Frank M. Harrison in the Combined Lineal List. Those authorized to be picked from below the zone must be holding permanent appointments in the grade of second lieutenant and above in the Regular Marine Corps.

Complete eligibility details were reported in the 4 Sept. and 16 Oct. editions of THE JOURNAL.

Officers serving on the board with General Munn are Colonels Robert H. McDowell, Harold D. Hansen, Paul D. Sherman, Edmund B. Games, Ben Z. Redfield, Charles H. Cox, James H. Brower, Albert F. Metzger, Herbert H. Williamson, Donald L. Dickson, and Maynard M. Nohrden.

Captain Jerry B. Smith is the recorder, and Captain William F. Deehler is the assistant recorder.

Maj. Marion Markey, USM "Outstanding Young Man"

Maj. Marion E. Markey, USMCR, has been named one of Chicago's six "outstanding Young Men of the Year."

He is currently Assistant Officer-in-Charge of the Reserve Branch, 9th Marine Corps Reserve and Recruitment District in Chicago.

Major Markey received the annual award of the city's Junior Association of Commerce for his contribution to Marine Corps administration in the 9th Reserve and Recruitment District, and for his aid in a slum clearance project on Chicago's South Side.

New "Black Sheep" Chief

Lt. Col. A. S. Walker, Jr., USMC, has been succeeded by Lt. Col. Robert T. Flaherty, USMC, as commander of the "Black Sheep" jet squadron at Marine Corps Air Station, Kaneohe Bay, T. H.

Colonel Walker, who has commanded the unit since its arrival from El Toro Marine Corps Air Station, Santa Ana, Calif., approximately six months ago, has been assigned to the staff of Marine Air Group 13.

MADE BY MR. & MRS. AMERICA

As each C-119 and C-123 rolls off the assembly line at Fairchild and joins the free world's powerful defensive force, men and women across our nation can look with pride on their accomplishment.

Although these great aircraft have their final assembly at the Fairchild Aircraft Division in Hagerstown, Maryland, many of the vital components originate in towns and cities all over the United States. Sub-contractors and suppliers from Manchester, New Hampshire to Trentwood, Oregon... from Minneapolis, Minnesota to Phoenix, Arizona keep essential parts flowing to Hagerstown.

Fairchild is grateful to these co-workers for making possible volume production of the famous Flying Boxcar and its great new partner, the Avitruce.

U. S. Air Force

461st Under Col. Ford Will Pioneer B-57B Use

Tactical Air Command has announced that the 461st Bombardment Wing (Light), a unit of its Ninth Air Force at Hill AFB, Utah, will soon be equipped with the new Martin B-57B "Night Intruder" twin-jet light bomber.

The 461st will be the first Air Force wing to receive the bomber version of the B-57 as its operational aircraft. The 363d Tactical Reconnaissance Wing, also assigned to TAC's Ninth Air Force at Shaw Air Force Base, Sumter, S. C., is now being equipped with the reconnaissance version.

The new bombers will replace the Douglas B-26 "Invaders" which the 461st Wing has been using since its activation on 26 Dec. 1953.

The wing is commanded by Col. Thomas R. Ford, USAF.

Woman Gets Air Mission

The Air Force has engaged one of the first women to pilot an airplane to conduct a nation-wide search for historic aviation mementos for exhibition in air museums throughout the country.

Miss Blanche Stuart Scott, the first woman flyer trained by the pioneer teacher, Glenn Curtiss, will gather aerial displays for the Air Force Museum at Wright-Patterson AFB, O., the Smithsonian Institution in Washington, D. C., and for some 29 or 30 small museums which the Air Force plans to set up in the United States. Miss Scott made her solo flight in the fall of 1910, a year after the French Baroness de la Roche became the first woman to pilot a plane.

Changing Station? Notify the Army Navy Air Force Journal promptly to avoid missing any issues.

BETTER PAPER WORK WILL MEAN LESS

The Air Force has declared a new war on paper work. Object is to snip red tape.

An Air Force Committee for the Improvement of Paper Work has been created to replace the former Printing Committee. Members include Assistant Air Force Secretary Lyle S. Garlock; J. J. McLaughlin, Administrative Assistant to the Air Force Secretary; Maj. Gen. R. W. Burns, Assistant Vice Chief of Staff; Col. L. F. Loesch, Secretary of the Air Staff; and Col. E. E. Toro, the Air Adjutant General. Richard A. Whitlock is executive secretary.

Two AF Officers Set High Altitude Parachute Jump

A record for high altitude parachute jumps was set recently by two Air Force officers who bailed out of a B-47 over the Gulf of Mexico at 45,200 feet.

The record jumps were made by Capt. Edward G. Sperry and 1st Lt. Henry P. Nielson, who used the new-type ejection seats now being tested by the Wright Air Development Center, O.

The former record was held by Maj. Vincent Mazza, of Wright Air Development Center, who jumped 42,000 feet in 1950. The new record was set by Lieutenant Nielson on 2 Aug., and Captain Sperry made his jump the following day.

The tested method of emergency escape from high-speed aircraft utilized an ejection seat mounted on rails which is driven downward and out of the aircraft by the explosion of a powder cartridge. The fully-automatic system releases the jumper from the seat and opens his parachute by special explosive and timing devices.

Col. Glazebrook Reports At TTAF Headquarters

Col. Marshall A. Glazebrook, USAF, has been assigned to Headquarters Technical Training Air Force at Gulfport, Miss., as Assistant Deputy Chief of Staff of Materiel. He will help monitor materiel activities at TTAF's 10 military and technical training bases.

His last assignment was as Wing Executive at Lowry AFB, Colo.

LINDY'S ON DUTY

Brig. Gen. Charles A. Lindbergh, USAFR, reported to the Pentagon 15 Nov. for a tour of active duty with the Office of the Special Assistant to the Secretary for Research & Development. He will be continuing work on classified projects of special concern to the Secretary of the Air Force, a Pentagon announcement said.

General Lindbergh was nominated by President Eisenhower to serve in his present reserve rank of Brigadier General on 15 Feb.

92d Bomb Wing Wins Outstanding Unit Award

The 92d Bomb Wing, a SAC B-36 unit based at Fairchild AFB, Wash., has been awarded the Air Force Outstanding Unit Award—highest that can be made in peacetime.

The award was made for the first mass flight of B-36s to the Far East in August 1953.

The 31st Strategic Fighter Wing at Turner AFB, Ga., also attached to SAC, won the award the first time it was made in 1952 for the mass flight of jet fighters across the Pacific.

The 92d was commanded by Brig. Gen. James V. Edmundson, USAF, at the time of the trans-Pacific flight. He is commander of the 57th Air Division at Fairchild.

Present commander of the 92d is Col. Jack J. Catton, USAF. The 92d is now on routine temporary duty at Guam.

Mitchel Gets New PIO

Maj. John F. Coughlin, USAF, has been assigned as Information Services Officer for Mitchel AFB, N. Y., it is disclosed by Col. James J. Roberts, jr., USAF Base Commander.

Three New Courses Set At Extension Institute

Three new courses have been made available to airmen at the USAF Extension Course Institute, Gunter AFB, Ala.

The Basic Weapons Repair course covers the operation, inspection, maintenance and repair of hand, shoulder and automatic weapons; aircraft mounts and launching racks. It is a four-volume course.

Two courses in the field of Wire Maintenance were announced. One is Air Force Specialty Code, an eight-volume course dealing with the splicing of insulated wires that join multiple-conductor cables, and the installation maintenance and repair of military telephone, telegraph and intercommunication equipment. The other, in nine volumes, covers the installation, maintenance and repair of central office equipment, and includes material about carrier-repeater equipment.

MacDill Gets New Chaplain

A new Base Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Jeremiah E. Sullivan, USAF, has reported to MacDill AFB, Fla., to replace Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Charles L. Lack, transferred to Germany.

NUTS & BOLTS PROBLEM

Air Force commanders have been directed to give special attention to the problem of damage to jet engines from foreign objects, such as nuts, bolts, screws, wire, nails, gravel and other matter.

It is reported that 70 major jet aircraft accidents in the past two years are attributable to engine failure caused by foreign objects.

Premature major overhaul of jet engines as a result of this type of damage cost the Air Force $18,000,000 last year.

Col. Bestic Heads Club

The SAC Aero Club at Offutt AFB, Neb., has elected Col. J. B. Bestic, USAF, president. Other officers are Lt. Col. Donald Kupfer, vice-president; Maj. C. R. Weisbrodt, secretary; 1st Lt. D. G. McCort, treasurer, and M/Sgt. Ray L. Dudley, maintenance officer.

more power.....better power ...TOMORROW'S POWER TODAY

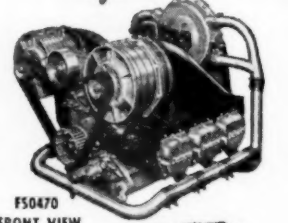

Here are three more reasons why tomorrow's finest aircraft, like today's, will fly with Continental power. Two of them represent further developments of the famous O470 series—one supercharged, the other supercharged and fan-cooled expressly for helicopter use—while the third is a brand new power plant, engineered and built with the needs of multi-engine utility planes in mind. They have one thing in common: as products of the pioneer in power for utility aircraft, all three rate high in those qualities which go to make up dependability—qualities which have made Continental engines fliers' undisputed first choice.

This story is wrapped up in seven packing cases. They contain the seven sections of the USAF B-61 Martin Matador pilotless bomber.

It is the story of one of the most tradition-shattering pieces of hardware in this world . . . a zero-launch pilotless bomber that can be deployed to any spot on earth—without having ever been previously assembled—and with total interchangeability of parts.

To realize fully the importance of this package job, you should know these things:

...The Matador meets performance requirements more exacting than those of a fighter plane.

...Its instrumentation section alone is one of the most functional single packages ever developed.

...It is built by new Martin-developed processes that are causing basic changes in industry concepts and production methods.

...And it is being delivered at the lowest known cost-per-pound of any military aircraft in production today.

You will hear more about Martin!

MARTIN
BALTIMORE • MARYLAND

Congratulations, Mr. Wilson. Defense Secretary Wilson has laid the chips on the table: the Services now know that if action is taken to secure a pay raise for the Government's civilian employees, the Defense Department will insist on equitable treatment for those in uniform.

In view of the fact that civilian pay raise legislation will be introduced early in the 84th Congress—by the Administration, individual Congressmen, or both—the Pentagon must be ready with a military pay raise bill, cleared by the Budget Bureau and ready-to-go when Congress convenes. On the basis of Mr. Wilson's firm statement at his news conference this week, military personnel now can count on such an effort on their behalf.

THE JOURNAL said editorially last week that it is essential that the Services have the feeling that their representation in Washington, specifically the Defense Department, is alert to their needs. In the past, Mr. Wilson has said that the pay situation required study.

To this end, he created an ad hoc committee, which has just made its findings known to the Secretary. Armed with this information and cognizant of the forthcoming campaign to raise the pay of the Government's civilian employees, the Defense Secretary has "informed the command" he intends to make certain that military personnel are not given second-rate treatment.

In this connection, it is to be recalled that at the time of the last pay hike, civilian employees received a 10 per cent boost in pay months in advance of the 4 per cent raise voted for military personnel. It is apparent that Mr. Wilson does not intend for that to happen again.

MATS and Air Logistics. The current move to take away from the Military Air Transport Service the responsibility for carrying military air mail on its overseas routes (as revealed in last week's JOURNAL) is more significant and serious than may appear at first glance.

The transportation of mail was one of the basic responsibilities assigned to MATS under the Secretary of Defense's memorandum of 3 May 1948 establishing the Service. This was done because the delivery of mail to service men in the field in time of war is a vital morale factor, carrying virtually as high a priority as the transportation of war supplies. MATS must be experienced in the handling of this important commodity so that it can continue this function smoothly should war come.

Unfortunately, there appears to be a misunderstanding in some quarters of the purpose of MATS. MATS is not, as some seem to think, just a convenient means of transportation in peace time. It is, in fact, an M-Day force in constant training so that it may be ready for expansion in an emergency. In peace time it is not operated at full tilt, but only sufficiently to keep its air and ground crews in training for the expansion that would come with war. This is shown by the figures. MATS aircraft are operated on an average of only four hours per plane per day, whereas commercial airline planes run an average of seven hours and 20 minutes per day. Further, MATS does not carry all the air mail nor all the passengers nor all the cargo required by the military services in times of peace (nor would they in war). They carry just enough to keep them in training and readiness—the commercial lines, with which MATS keeps very close liaison, carry the rest.

The fear is that this first nibbling at one of MATS basic functions may lead to further and more serious curtailment of its peace time training and thus to a let down in its state of readiness. In an emergency there would be vital need for the fullest utilization of the skills and equipment of both MATS and all the commercial airlines. Let us not impair the capabilities of either in times of peace.

Wives of Service. In the weeks between now and the end of 1954, THE JOURNAL will publish scores of reports from the world over which will recount how Service families are helping others to enjoy a more bountiful Thanksgiving and a merrier Christmas. Such stories already are becoming known; indeed, some are published in this issue.

Each year, the Service family, no matter where it may be stationed—whether in Germany, England, Japan, Okinawa, the United States, or Hawaii—works particularly hard at the holiday time in the year-round role of "Good Will Ambassador." Money is collected for food, and baskets are distributed. Toys are procured, mended and dispatched to orphanages, schools, and to homes where otherwise the holidays would be drab ones for children. Yes, these will be especially busy weeks for the Service wife, and for her lieutenants: in this case, the husband and children.

Too often in news reports of Service life, there is distortion of the alleged privileges of military families. Virtually overlooked—quite possibly because it is a year-in year-out activity—is the tremendous job which Service wives and their families are accomplishing in bringing an understanding of the United States and of the principles of democracy to peoples around the world. The JOURNAL does not feel these activities should go without notice, no matter how frequently they are repeated over the years. We look forward to telling this story in detail. In a world of threat and peril, it is a story of fine spirit and good deeds which is a pleasure to relate.

IN THE JOURNAL

10 Years Ago—More than 300 Army posts, camps and stations, or portions thereof, comprising 2,768,000 acres of land owned or leased by the War Department, have been returned to the original owners, transferred to the Navy and other government agencies, or certified to surplus property disposal agencies.

50 Years Ago—To those familiar with the general purpose of the United States Navy League, the formation of a section of that organization in London will be highly gratifying. The Navy League is still in its infancy and the educational movement to which it is devoted has not yet been fully instituted, but it is growing steadily, and the objects it has in view are so strongly supported by popular sentiment that the ultimate success of the undertaking seems assured.

90 Years Ago—The resignation of General McClellan gives to General Halleck the seniority amongst the major generals of the Army. The appointment of General Sheridan to the vacant major generality is one which will give satisfaction to the public, if not to the other distinguished general officers who had what they might consider to be prior and better claims to such elevation. It is a significant fact that the late Presidential canvass has been the means of depriving the Army of its two ranking major generals—McClellan and Fremont.

Three Terms for "Fringe"

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

It was recently mentioned in the Journal that Mr. Wilson was seeking a new term to replace the expression "fringe benefits."

I have thought of three such names and am giving them to you with definitions. All three definitions can be applied to any one of the suggested names.

They are submitted for what little they may be worth in securing and maintaining for the military that which has always been a basic military right rather than a benefit.

Institutional Benefits—Traditional benefits established by authority which are as valid as are pay benefits.

Equitable Benefits—Just and honest benefits, well known by all, not containing hidden recesses of advantages, benefits which have always been open to inspection and always properly administered. A just contract.

Secure Benefits—Guaranteed by the integrity of those who offer them, benefits in which the recipient can feel secure and free from apprehension as to their future alteration.

JOHN N. DICK,
COLONEL, USAF

Dead Benefits

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

Rather than think of a new name for "Fringe Benefits," let us do away with the few minor Fringes of benefit remaining and bury the term along with the dead benefits.

The benefits of late years have become so intermittent that they benefit only a small percentage of Servicemen who are stationed adjacent to big bases. Service personnel who are unable to benefit from the "fringes" feel that they are being short-changed. Let us review what benefits are included in the fringes, to see if they justify their continuation. Carrying the overhead in Navy Exchanges has made them sell at about the same price level as chain drug stores. The commissaries are hard to shop at due to their difficult locations, the banker's hours they keep, inadequate parking facilities and prices are frequently higher than in chain grocery stores. Medical care for dependents is good competent care for those who can reach the overworked hospital facilities. A man has to get early liberty to buy gas at an exchange station, which must total a fabulous loss in man-hours of work. However, civilians are jealous of the "extras" that Service people are said to enjoy. They think all Servicemen enjoy all the extras so they resent paying taxes to support us in luxury.

I suggest that the total operating costs, in continental United States, of dependents' clinics, commissaries, exchanges, theaters, gas stations, officers' clubs, etc., be added up and then divided by the number of personnel on active duty. The unit figure should then be added to the monthly "pay" of each and every Serviceman. No gifts, no cumshaw, no fringes, just honest "pay." The personnel released from special service duties would help alleviate the present personnel shortage.

As for the men who live aboard ships or in barracks, the "canteen" of 20 years ago provided them with much better, cheaper and more convenient services than are provided today, and the canteens were extremely simple and cheap to operate, having no civilians connected.

If the Department of Defense would sponsor a Blue Cross policy for every Service dependent they would be able to meet the military medical commitments with reduced facilities and personnel, and not be overworked trying to care for dependents.

Little ATC at "Fursty" Spreads USAF Jet Skills to Air Forces of Free World

Fuller utilization of air equipment they are receiving under MDAP is now being made by eight free-world nations as the result of a chain reaction of training flowing from the 7330th Training Wing (MDAP) at Furstenfeldbruck AB in the U. S. Zone of Germany.

Under a student pilot training program which got underway only last April, the wing already has trained 175 students from Greece, Iran, Italy, Netherlands, Portugal, Spain, Turkey, and the United Kingdom.

They are not taught primary flying—all are rated pilots in their own air forces when they are sent to "Fursty." They are given instrument training, jet transition training, senior staff officer jet familiarization, and, most important, are given special instructor courses so that they may go back to their native lands and pass on to others the skills given to them by the "Little ATC." Thus, all the allied nations benefit through better use and wider utilization of the modern equipment furnished under MDAP.

Many of the students take two or more courses. The 175 already graduated actually took 237 student spaces. The 72 now undergoing training will bring the total to 316 spaces.

The record of these international pilots is good, for thus far only eight students have been eliminated prior to graduation and the school has had only one fatal accident.

Both the Base and the Wing at "Fursty" are commanded by Col. Mark H. Vinzant, Jr., USAF, a veteran of the air war in the Southwest Pacific and with many years of experience in training. Just prior to taking command of the 7330th, he had been Director of Flying Training at Hq., Air Training Command, Scott AFB, Ill.

Furstenfeldbruck, near Munich in Bavaria, had been a German air training center before the war and is reputed to have been a favorite of Goering who visited there often. When the U. S. Air Force took over, it was used for a time as a depot and then for B-26s.

The 7330th was first set up in late 1953. Maj. Michael Smolen, USAF, a former member of the famous "Acrojet" team, and now Group Operations and Training Officer, was the first to arrive. Colonel Vinzant followed shortly after.

Virtually all of Colonel Vinzant's personnel were picked from officers recently on duty with ATC. In fact, ATC methods are used throughout and the Wing has direct communication with ATC headquarters on technical matters.

The School can handle a student load of 157 and so heavy are the requests from other nations that it is rapidly approaching that figure.

To speed up its work, all the students in the initial classes were picked from among those who could speak English. After they were trained in our methods and took the instructors courses, some were retained to teach future classes. Subsequent students who cannot speak English are placed in separate classes and taught by men of their own tongue. Those who can speak English are taught by U. S. instructors. While this complicates the school's program, 1st Lt. Ben A. Barone, school secretary, reports that it has worked out very well. At this time there are on duty at the School, as instructors, 19 Turkish officers, nine Spanish, and one Portuguese.

Two types of aircraft are used, Canadian-built Harvard Mark IV trainers (the North American 600-hp T-6 "Texan") and Lockheed T-33 jet trainers. The T-6 is used in the Prerequisite Qualification Course and in the Instrument, Instrument Instructor, and Transition Instructor Course.

The T-33 is used in the Jet Transition Course, Jet Transition Instructor Course, Jet Instrument Instructor Course, and the Senior Staff Officer Jet Familiarization Course.

Housing for personnel is generally good. On base housing totals 345 in comfortable and convenient apartments built by Germans under the alternate housing plan. However, 212 still live in requisitioned housing. By the first of the year 72 more on base units will be available. Permission is also granted to rent on the German economy.

The base also furnishes support to its tenants including the 1807th AACS Wing, the 2d Weather Wing, and the 1602d MATS.

The base and wing makes full use of the "Native Son" program, employing about 1,800 German nationals. Many of

COMMENT ON FOREIGN AFFAIRS The Status of the Chinese Coastal Islands

RED CHINA, exhibiting actively for the first time its possession of torpedo-equipped patrol boats, has managed with a single strike to sink off Tachen one of the Chinese Nationalists' few destroyers and to set off a considerable explosion some 10,000 miles away. It is quite a range even for a 1954 torpedo. The local victim was the 1,800-ton Taiping (which we once knew as USS Becker) which had been engaged for a long time in a somewhat one-sided skirmish with casual Red opposition in the vicinity of the Tachen coastal group. Badly holed, the Taiping went down in deep water before she could be towed to safety.

The longer-range explosion was in Washington, where Senator Knowland (Rep., Calif.), the Senate's majority leader, who has been in obvious disagreement with the President on certain foreign policies, voiced an unexpected demand for a review of them in the Senate itself. The Administration's answer came promptly, with both President Eisenhower and Secretary of State Dulles participating. The former, in a long-scheduled speech, reaffirmed his view that there must be a better understanding with Russia if world peace is to be maintained. The Secretary remarked that he sees no present need for a senatorial review of foreign policy; it is under continuous review by the Department and by the National Security Council, he went on, and from time to time is rather fully exposed to the American public itself through the weekly press conferences conducted by the Secretary—these remarks being offered, incidentally, at one of those weekly events.

THE HOSTILITY, on our Russian policy, between the President and his normal right hand in the Senate, however, is unmistakable, and the Tachen episode illustrates it readily. For Senator Knowland holds that in Tachen, as in Quemoy, and in the other two coastal groups where Chiang Kai-shek's forces remain in control, the United States is under obligation to protect Chiang—on the reasoning that these are not only first-class outposts close to enemy lines, but that they must be maintained in that status. It is no profound secret that Knowland's views are shared by numerous military people, and opposed by others.

The President, for one, does not share the view that we are warranted in exercising our military powers to maintain Chiang's grip on islands so close to Red China's coast. By continuing Presidential direction the Seventh Fleet is committed to protecting Chiang on his Formosan stronghold, and also in the nearby Pescadores. That much has been officially and publicly stated countless times, but repeated efforts to educe a similar statement with regard to Quemoy and the other coastal islands have failed to get one, either positive or negative; there should be no argument over the desirability of maintaining a stony silence as to our military intentions in certain contingencies.

RED CHINA certainly is one of the nations which would like to have that silence broken, and a Far East dispatch at midweek offered the conjecture that this desire largely explains the attack on the unfortunate destroyer Taiping—that is, Red China undertook at moderate risk to hit Chiang's small navy a blow which might shock the State Department in Washington into announcing firmly what it will do, now that there has been a warlike action of some size in these coastal waters. If that was the purpose, Peiping appears to be on the way to achieving it, ultimately, with the aid of Senator Knowland.

Immediate results were not very rewarding, for Mr. Dulles defeated questioners by limiting his reply to Formosa itself and to the Pescadores, about which there is no division of opinion. If Red China undertakes war against Formosa, he said categorically, it will mean hostilities, and the announced instructions to the Seventh Fleet leave no doubt of it. But, he went on, actions short of war on Formosa will have to be judged in their bearing on that or other fundamental policies; the need for flexibility in the interpretation of policy forbids any detailed statement of exact intentions with relation to events not yet matured.

AS TO CO-EXISTENCE with Russia, it may be well to maintain a degree of flexibility in policy while seeking less flexibility in terminology. For Senator Knowland seems to regard the word co-existence with alarm. In fact his opposition to what he thinks President Eisenhower means by the term has led to a sharp reminder from the Administration that there must be no thought of a "preventive war," and this in turn to the Californian's hasty explanation that he too is opposed to a "preventive war."

The present prospect is that the Knowland proposal for a senatorial review of state policy will come about, but in a 1955 session where Senator Knowland will be in the minority rather than the majority party, and that by that time the issues will have been appreciably clarified both by events and by the normal routine of Presidential conference with representatives of both parties.

RUSSIA'S EFFORT to organize an international conference for peaceful settlement has been discouraged by the West, with formal rejections of the proposal coming this past week both from London and from Paris—M. Mendès-France noting the impossibility of achieving anything at a meeting on such vast issues when it was scheduled a mere fortnight in advance.

The French premier touched on a point which American counsellors have vigorously stressed already, namely that the West is still building up that strength which is a requisite for peace, and that the Moscow proposal would be more timely after there has been ratification of the Brussels pact extension. He appears calmly confident that the French parliament will ratify before January. Whatever misgivings he may have over the troubles which Chancellor Adenauer is having with a Bonn ratification (primarily because of France's exactions with regard to the Saar item) M. Mendès-France kept to himself in all public utterances prior to his Washington conversations, which began at midweek.

MOSCOW, undeterred by the West's coldness, continues fulminations against the West's announced intention of maintaining NATO and rearming West Germany, and threatens retaliation in two respects—(1) establishing a counter organization of Soviet states, and (2) rearming East Germany.

The threats are not unduly alarming inasmuch as both have already been in effect for years; there may be new things in store in this singularly constituted "peace drive" of Moscow's, but the threats to date seem unusually inept.

GENERAL J. LAWTON COLLINS, wearing his new but temporary diplomatic hat in Indo-China as gracefully as his more familiar Army garb, was able to announce at midweek in Saigon that his quest is for America's "basic responsibility" for troop training in that troubled land, with France necessarily having its own responsibility as well, in view of the simple realities. It will surprise nobody to learn that General Collins must move with great caution if he is to improve materially a political-military situation that is bad indeed.

PENTAGON LEGISLATIVE LIAISON will be played by ear in the next months. There are no rules written for the handling of Congressional relations when there's a Republican Assistant Defense Secretary for Legislative Affairs and a Democratic majority on Capitol Hill. It hasn't happened before.

THE DEFENSE DEPT. legislative chief is Fred Seaton, a one-time Senator from Nebraska. In the past when Congress has been controlled by a party other than that in the White House, the individual Services were handling legislative liaison, or it was done by special assistants to the Defense Secretary.

NOW, HOWEVER, the legislative liaison responsibilities are in the hands of a Republican political figure. Pentagon observers foresee the possibility of some difficulties, but the belief is that most defense legislation will be handled on a non-partisan basis. Investigations, however, may be another story, particularly on the Senate side.

IT WILL BE INEXCUSABLE if partisan politics should assume a commanding position in the consideration of defense matters—for example, the budget and the Reserve Forces program. Similarly, there will be unfortunate ramifications for Service personnel if politics should interfere with action on important personnel legislation.

ONE AREA PARTICULARLY SENSITIVE to political dispute is that of family medical care. At best, that bill is in for rough sledding on Capitol Hill, particularly in view of certain opposition from the American Medical Association. It would take expert legislative liaison work to gain its passage under the best circumstances. Mr. Seaton will not be dealing from political strength in discussing the matter with Chairmen Russell and Vinson of the Armed Services Committees. However, it can be taken for granted that both of these veteran legislators, well aware of the family medical care problem, will give the Assistant Secretary a sympathetic audience.

THE ARMED SERVICES COMMITTEES, as has been stated previously, are proud of their non-partisan approach, by and large, to defense problems. It will be interesting to see how this attitude fares in the new situation where Republican political appointees, and not career military personnel, will be guiding legislative liaison.

THE RECENT ELECTIONS apparently still were very much on SecDef Wilson's mind at his news conference this week when he was asked whether he still favors a two-year tour for the JCS members. The Secretary replied that he thought that was "about right," with the possibility of an extension to four years.

THEN HE COMMENTED: "Two years seems to be enough for a Congressman and four for a President. I think it would be all right to have the Chiefs on about that same basis."

PERMANENT LEGISLATION provides that the Service Chiefs may serve up to four-year terms. At the present time, however, the JCS members actually are serving unspecified terms, although the White House and Mr. Wilson indicated that they were being appointed for two years. Their commissions make no specific reference to tenure.

SENATOR CASE'S about-face on the Watkins Committee's comments on Senator McCarthy's abuse of Brig. Gen. Zwicker could have further ramifications next year. Senator Case is a member of the Armed Services Committee.

ARMY SECY. STEVENS would have put a firm stopper on the "Who Promoted Peress?" agitation had he informed Senator McCarthy in succinct terms that the former dental officer was promoted because of an Act passed by Congress, and for no other reason.

BEYOND THAT, the Secretary would have been well advised to give the Senator a single name when asked who was responsible in the Peress matter. That name: Secretary Robert T. Stevens.

THE ARMY HEAD has stated repeatedly the circumstances of the Peress promotion and he has not attempted to duck the responsibility. However, in sending a long and involved communication to the Senator and in making the names of some 30 officers available on a confidential basis, the Secretary opened the door to trouble.

NEW AIRCRAFT CLOCKS now cost the Air Force more than $1 million per year. Annual loss is placed at about $350,000. Commanders have been told to give the clock problem special attention.

A PORTABLE RESPIRATOR, developed at the Air Force School of Aviation Medicine, Randolph AFB, Tex., soon will be made available to MATS bases for emergency use in evacuation of patients. Recently, a team of medical experts flew from San Antonio to Dhahran, Saudi Arabia, to pick up a polio victim and fly him to Washington, D. C. The respirator is carried like a stretcher with the patient inside; it's about 1/10th the weight of comparable breathing aids.

A FOUR-STRIPE SLIP-UP occurred somewhere along the line when the Navy prepared its testimony on the bill creating a Chief of the Medical Service Corps. Navy spokesmen told Congress last summer that no MSC officer would be eligible for consideration for promotion to captain until 1956. Soon after the bill had been approved and the Navy had given special four-stripe rank to the new MSC Chief, however, a Navy selection board named another MSC commander for promotion to captain. The Navy Surgeon General H. L. Pugh had testified: "The need for this legislation stems solely from the fact that although the Medical Service Corps is authorized 17 captains, there has not yet been one appointed and in the normal course of events under existing law it is not likely that one will be appointed by promotion in due course for at least three years."

THE HERREN FAMILY will be well represented in N. Y. State on 1 Dec. when Maj. Gen. Thomas W. Herren, USA, takes command of the First Army at Governors Island. Two sons, Thomas W. Herren, jr., and John D. Herren, are cadets at West Point.

ARMY REENLISTMENTS are showing a marked increase, according to statistics just compiled at the Pentagon. The RA re-up rate, which was 11.3% in Jan. went up to 40.2% in Sept. The over-all Army re-up rate, which includes draftees, was 7.9% in January, had hit a low of 4.7 in FY '53, but now is climbing to 11%.

How to ADD INCOME FOR RETIREMENT

With the purchasing power of the dollar at about half what it was ten years ago, it is reasonable to assume that the dollar you save today may have value fluctuations in the future.

Many civilian and service personnel are preparing for extra retirement income to help compensate for a possible decline in dollar purchasing power through the regular purchase of Mutual Fund shares . . . Funds comprised of dividend paying securities. And doing it out of current earnings.

As our company has counseled thousands of civilians and service personnel, we are well aware of the important problem of supplementing fixed-dollar savings for extra retirement income. Let us help you get started on the way to a more sound financial future. For complete information, just mail a postcard with your name and address for our free booklet, "The Modern Way to Invest."

"AMERICAN INDUSTRY... is a full-fledged member of the defense team..."

"In the few short years since World War II, the Armed Forces of the United States have developed the hardest hitting, fastest moving combat units known to military history. Superbly equipped in every respect, their capabilities depend largely on the ability of American industry to produce and supply the materials they require to accomplish their missions at home and abroad.

"More and more it becomes evident that military doctrine and industrial progress must continue to pace each other in the strenuous race to stock our arsenals with the best and most modern weapons that American ingenuity, technology and industry can produce. To this end, American industry has long since joined the Armed Forces as a full-fledged member of the defense team."

Statement by Lieutenant General Lyman L. Lemnitzer,
 Deputy Chief of Staff for Plans and Research,
 United States Army.

AMERICAN MACHINE & FOUNDRY COMPANY,
 New York, presents this message as a public service... to promote greater understanding of the relationship between the Armed Forces and American Industry

SERVICE FAMILY NOTES

GENERAL AND THE BROWNIES. Two little Brownies and a full-fledged Girl Scout found it an easy job when it came to selling their calendar to Maj. Gen. Thomas S. Timberman, Commanding General of the 2d Infantry Division and Ft. Lewis, Wash. Each made a sale. Handing the calendar to General Timberman is Penny Christina. She and her twin sister, Toni, are the daughters of Capt. and Mrs. Anthony A. Christina. The Brownies were accompanied by Girl Scout Maribelle Bryde, daughter of Col. and Mrs. Walter Bryde.

AIR Force Chief of Staff, General Nathan F. Twining, and Mrs. Twining are looking forward to a family Thanksgiving and will have with them their son, Nathan, a student at Oberlin Conservatory of Music, and their daughter, Olivia, who this year is a boarding pupil at Holton Arms School. They all expect to take in the Army and Navy football game.

Gen. & Mrs. Magruder in D. C.—

Brig. Gen. Marshall Magruder, USA-Ret., and Mrs. Magruder of Atlanta, Ga., have taken an apartment at the Woodner in Washington, D. C., till after the New Year.

The Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff and Mrs. Arthur W. Radford have sent out invitations to some 650 persons for a reception 22 Nov. in honor of the officers attending the conference of the Military Committee of NATO. It will take place in the McNair Officers' Club, from 6 to 8. It will be a return visit for the chairman of the committee, French Gen. Augustin Guillaume, who was in Washington in early October.

Army MSC Women's Club—

The Army Medical Service Women's Club will hold its regular monthly meeting on Wednesday 1 Dec., in the Walter Reed Army Medical Center's Officers Club beginning at 12:30 p.m.

Wives of personnel assigned to the Army Medical Service Graduate School are hostesses for this luncheon. Mrs. John R. Wood, wife of the Commandant of the School, is chairman of the committee. Hostesses are Mesdames Stanley J. Carpenter, W. H. Crosby, Ross L. Gauld, Chester A. Gleiser, Herschel Griffin, R.

QUANTICO, VA.—Mrs. Max J. Volcansek, Jr., (right), wife of the Director of the Marine Corps Schools, talking with Mrs. Robert Steidtmann, wife of the Assistant Director of the School, at the annual welcoming tea for the wives of Marine, Army, Navy, Air Force and Allied officers attending the Marine Corps Amphibious Warfare School, after greeting some 200 guests.

L. Hullinghorst, Roy D. Maxwell, Charles Moseley, Raymond Randall, Norman Scott, and Joseph Smadel.

Christmas decor will be the theme with Mrs. Frederick C. Lang of the National Capitol Flower Club as guest speaker. She will demonstrate many and varied Christmas decoration schemes.

The Walter Reed day nursery will be open for the care of children under eight years of age. All medical service officers' wives are cordially invited. Reservations may be made at the Officers' Mess.

Annual Army JAG Fall Dinner—

A military dinner and ball, with all officers in uniform, will be given 20 Nov. by the officers of the Judge Advocate General's Office and their ladies, for the JAG's of the Washington area, in the ballroom of the Officers' Club at Ft. McNair. Preceding dinner, there will be cocktails served in the McNair Room.

Receiving with the Judge Advocate General and Mrs. Eugene M. Caffey, will be Maj. Gen. and Mrs. C. B. Mickelwait, and Brig. Gen. and Mrs. W. Hickman.

Navy Mothers Talk Turkey—

The Merry Christmas party staged annually by the Navy Mothers Club No. 597 of the District, for the patients at the U. S. Naval Hospital at Bethesda, Md., will be packed with extra sugar and spice this year. Mrs. Virginia Main, Club commander, has announced, with Mr. Earl Glen, a member of the Georgetown Lions Club, fattening the Club larder by giving to it 20 per cent of the receipts from his two gift shops, taken in on Veterans Day, 11 Nov. The party, as well as others at St. Elizabeth's Hospital, Mt. Alto Veterans Hospital and the monthly buffet at the Lafayette Square USO Club, give the boys a real home treat, with plenty of good food and a genuine home atmosphere.

QM Women's Club Entertain—

The Quartermaster Women's Club held their formal dinner dance on 13 Nov. at the Ft. McNair Officers Club. The ballroom was decorated with the traditional Thanksgiving fruits and flowers with the Quartermaster flags and colors in the background.

Lt. Col. and Mrs. Reuben T. Morgan, Chairmen, were assisted by Col. and Mrs. R. B. Taylor, Col. and Mrs. Merrill Tribe, Lt. Col. and Mrs. W. J. Shadle, Lt. Col. and Mrs. Joe E. Murray and Maj. and Mrs. Max E. Timmons.

The festivities got under way at 7:30 p.m. when the cocktail hour started and during that time, Sgt. Lloyd Lindroth, the Army's famous swing harpist played.

Heading the list of guests were Maj. Gen. & Mrs. Kester L. Hastings, Quartermaster General; Brig. Gen. & Mrs. Alfred B. Dennison; Brig. Gen. & Mrs. Andrew T. McNamara; Brig. Gen. & Mrs. Henry R. McKenzie, and Brig. Gen. and Mrs. William E. Barksdale. Over two hundred Quartermaster officers and their guests attended.

General Clay Fund Will Be Boosted

A coffee on Monday 22 Nov. at the home of Mrs. Jouett Shouse will bring together members of the Committee for the formal musicale, to be staged at the Lisner Auditorium on 4 Dec. for the benefit of the General Lucius Clay Fund for German Youth Activities.

Members of the Committee, of which Mrs. Shouse is Chairman, are Mesdames Harold E. Talbott, wife of the Secretary of the Air Force; Matthew Ridgway, wife of the Army Chief of Staff; Charles P. Cabell, wife of the Deputy Director of the Central Intelligence Agency; Robert W. Hasbrouck, wife of Major General Hasbrouck, USA-Ret.; Charles H. Royce, wife of the Chief of the Army Audit Agency; Haywood S. Hansell, wife of Major General Hansell, Office Secretary of Defense; Frank S. Hannan, Social Dean, Mt. Vernon Seminary; and Constance Snow, of the Snow Concert Bureau.

Also attending the get-together will be Col. E. C. Kavanagh of the Review Board Council of the Office of the Secretary of the Army, and Col. Joseph S. Harbison of Civil Affairs and Military Government, Office of the Chief of Staff.

President and Mrs. Dwight D. Eisenhower will head the list of honorary patrons, together with the German Ambassador and Mrs. Heinz L. Krekler. The concert will feature the 90-voice West Point Glee Club, the Mt. Vernon Girls' Choir and the "Singing Strings" of the U. S. Air Force Band. An added attraction will be Manfred Capell of Berlin, Germany, winner of the 1954 GYA Meister-singer Contest, singing the number that made him the winner. Mr. Capell is now attending the American Academy of Vocal Arts in Philadelphia, on a one-year GYA Scholarship.

The Armed Forces Assistance Program for German Youth Activities, with Community Centers throughout the U. S. Zone of Germany, dates back to 1945, when Service men began to win the friendship of hundreds of German boys and girls who were homeless, cold and hungry. The response became so great that this program for all German Youth, between the ages of 5 and 25, became a recognized activity of the U. S. Army and Air Force in Germany. It was estimated that one out of every four youths took part in the many diversified activities of the 354 GYA Centers operated, which proved a challenging opportunity for the introduction of new ideas to future leaders, who had known only Hitler's training. The effect of this Program, which brought hundreds of Americans in contact with the German people, was a two-way road, teaching Americans and Germans about each other, and creating an invaluable influence in the prevention of another war, through a mutual trust and understanding.

Tickets for the Concert are now on sale at the Snow Concert Bureau, 1108 G St., N. W., and at the Army and Navy Club, Farragut Square and I St., N. W. They are priced at $2.00, $3.00 and $5.00.

Class of '38 USMA Wives—

A luncheon and fashion show was enjoyed by 23 wives of the Class of 1938, when they gathered recently, at the Army-Navy Country Club, with Mrs. William K. Kincaid and Mrs. Lloyd E. Johnson, jr. Their next meeting will be held in January.

General and Mrs. Medaris Entertain—

Brig. Gen. and Mrs. John B. Medaris of 1007 Hillwood Ave., Falls Church, Va., entertained at cocktails for some 50 guests, in the McNair Room of the Officers' Club at Ft. Lesley J. McNair, on 19 Nov.

Weddings and Engagements

COL. (USA-Ret.) and Mrs. Benjamin Kenney Erdman announce the engagement of their daughter, Elizabeth Buchanan Erdman, to Lt. Harry Ernest Cartland, USA.

The bride-elect, who was graduated from St. Mary's Junior College, Raleigh, N. C., and from the University of Kentucky, is a member of Chi Omega Sorority. She also attended the University of Maryland and the University of Geneva, Geneva, Switzerland. For the past year and a half she has been employed by George Washington University as artist and statistical clerk at the Human Research Unit, Ft. Knox, Ky. She and her parents and brother, Ben K. Erdman, jr., have recently returned to Lexington, Ky., from Ft. Knox to make their home.

Lieutenant Cartland received his education in various schools throughout Europe and attended the University of Maryland. Upon being graduated from the Officer Candidate School at Ft. Knox, he received a direct commission in the Regular Army. Lieutenant Cartland is now on duty with the Sixth Armored Cavalry Regiment in Germany.

The wedding will take place 28 Dec. in Lexington.

PINNEY-JOHNSON—A forthcoming marriage of wide interest was revealed recently when Lt. Gen. and Mrs. Willard G. Wyman announced the engagement of their daughter, Mrs. Patricia Wyman Johnson, to Mr. Eugene Taylor Pinney, son of Mrs. E. M. Pinney of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, and the late Mr. Pinney.

Mrs. Johnson recently returned from a two-year tour of Government work in Munich, Germany, and is presently visiting her parents at the Presidio of San Francisco. She is the widow of Lt. Victor E. Johnson, USAF, who was killed in an airplane accident in 1949. She attended Mills College in Oakland, Calif.

Mr. Pinney is a graduate of Western Reserve Academy, Hudson, Ohio, and Dartmouth College where he was affiliated with Alpha Delta Phi fraternity. During World War II, he served with an 8th Air Force combat crew in England. For the past five years Mr. Pinney has been engaged in Government work in Munich, and was recently reassigned to Washington, D. C.

A small wedding, to be solemnized in the Wyman home at the Presidio during the Christmas holidays, is planned.

Weddings and Engagements

MITCHAM-CHACE — Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Halley Grey Maddox of Atlanta and Augusta, Ga., announce the engagement of her daughter, Madeleine Grace Chace, to Mr. Grady Lavelle Mitcham of Bernice, La., and Hampton, Va., the marriage to take place in the early spring in Europe. The engagement was announced on 13 Nov. at a dinner party given by General and Mrs. Maddox at the Casemate Officers Club at Ft. Monroe, Va.

The bride-elect attended the University School for Girls in Chicago, Washington Seminary and Christ the King in Atlanta, where she was a member of the Pi Pi sorority, the Pirate, Chick, Spinster, and Zeonox clubs. She was graduated from the Augusta Junior College and completed her education at Converse College in Spartanburg, S. C.

For the past 18 months, Miss Chace has been Executive Secretary and Assistant Field Director of the American Red Cross at Ft. Monroe, Va.

Mr. Mitcham is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Grady Mitcham of Bernice, La. He attended Louisiana Polytechnic Institute, Ruston, La., and is a graduate of Alabama Polytechnic Institute in Auburn, Ala., with a B.S. in Aeronautical Engineering. During WW II, he flew 55 missions as a pilot with the Fifteenth Air Force based in Italy and was awarded the Distinguished Service Cross, Silver Star, Distinguished Flying Cross, with Oak Leaf Cluster, Purple Heart and the Air Medal with five Oak Leaf Clusters. Mr. Mitcham is employed at present as an Aeronautical Engineer in the Pilotless Aircraft Research Division of the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics at Langley AFB, Va.

General and Mrs. Maddox and their two daughters, Madeleine and Sara, and Mrs. Maddox's mother, Mrs. Dillon Ehrheart, are leaving shortly for Europe where General Maddox will be stationed.

The date and plans for the wedding will be announced later.

DELAMAIN-BOUSQUET — Mr. and Mrs. John A. Bousquet of Houston, Tex., have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Kinta Ann Bousquet, to Lt. Frederic W. Delamain, USA, son of

MISS MILDRED ELAINE BISSETT, whose engagement to 1st Lt. John Angus McDonald, has been announced by her parents, Lt. Col. (USA-Ret.) and Mrs. David A. Bissett of Evanston, Ill.

MRS. PETER JOSEPH MALZ, who was married to Lieutenant Malz, on 5 Nov., at St. Joseph's Church, Columbia, S. C., was Miss Ann Louise Howell, daughter of Brig. Gen. (USA-Ret.) and Mrs. George P. Howell of Columbia, and granddaughter of Lt. Col. Edward N. Chisolm, USA-Ret., and the late Mrs. Chisolm.

MRS. JACK DEMPSEY SUMMERS, daughter of Col. and Mrs. James King Donaghy of Ft. McPherson, Ga., whose marriage to Mr. Summers took place on 29 Oct., at the Post Chapel, Ft. McPherson.

MISS MADELEINE CHACE, daughter of Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Halley Grey Maddox, of Augusta and Atlanta, Ga., whose engagement has been announced to Mr. Grady Lavelle Mitcham of Bernice, La., and Hampton, Va., the marriage to take place in the early spring in Europe.

MRS. LESTER S. RUBENSTEIN, the former Miss Patricia Ann Hauser of Lansing, Mich., who was married to Lieutenant Rubenstein, recently, in Berlin, Germany.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederic W. Delamain of San Antonio, Tex.

Miss Bousquet attended Edgewood Park, Briarcliff Manor, N. Y., and the University of Houston, Houston, Tex. Lieutenant Delamain is a graduate of the U. S. Military Academy, class of 1954. He is presently attending the Armored School at Ft. Knox, Ky.

MCDONALD-BISSETT—Lt. Col. (USA-Ret.) and Mrs. David A. Bissett of Evanston, Ill., announce the engagement of their daughter, Mildred Elaine, to 1st Lt. John Angus McDonald, son of Mr. and Mrs. John A. McDonald of Niagara Falls, N. Y.

Miss Bissett is a graduate of Northfield School for Girls and attended Russell Sage College. From 1949 to 1953 she served as a Service Club Director in Germany, under Special Services of the Army, and is presently serving as Service Club Director at Sedalia AFB, Mo. Lieutenant McDonald attended Cornell University before entering the Air Force and is now a member of the 340th Bomb Wing stationed at Sedalia AFB.

The marriage will take place in Evans-ton on 27 Dec.

MARFLEET-O'BRIEN — Miss Helen Catherine O'Brien, daughter of Col. and Mrs. Leo M. O'Brien of Vero Beach, Fla., was married to Mr. John Allen Marfleet, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie R. Marfleet of Miami, Fla., on 13 Nov. at Trinity Episcopal Church, Vero Beach. The double ring ceremony was performed by Dr. Edward Gabler.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown with bodice of satin and bouffant tiered skirt of nylon tulle ending in a deep sweep. Her fingertip illusion veil fell from a bandeau of tiny pearls. Her bouquet was a shower of Phalaenopsis orchids and stephanotis.

Mrs. David V. Robison of Vero Beach was matron of honor and the flower girl was Miss Toni Howder.

The bridegroom's best man was Mr. David V. Robison of Vero Beach and ushers were Messrs. James H. Hargreaves and David P. Sawyer, jr.

Mrs. Marfleet attended school in Richmond, Va., and Washington, D. C., and until her marriage was Fashion Coordinator for The Hecht Co. department stores of Washington. Mr. Marfleet was graduated from the University of Virginia and is now a practicing architect in Vero Beach.

After a trip to Nassau, the newlyweds will make their home in Vero Beach, Fla.

Buffet Dinner at Ft. Lee

■ FORT LEE, VA. Staged in an atmosphere of pumpkins, corn shocks and rhythmical combo music the Fort Lee Officers' Open Mess played host to over 400 officers, their wives and friends, 24 Oct., at a lavish buffet dinner prepared by QM student officers, Consolidated and Open Mess Management Course, Ft. Lee. The buffet dinner, the first of its kind to be presented in a service school, drew Army wide attention and the personal interest of General Kester L. Hastings, Quartermaster General.

The buffet table was a show piece in itself with its many colored hors d'oeuvres and canapés. A 12 pound decorated Kenebec salmon and a gelatin encased Virginia ham set off an artistic ice-carving in the form of a flower basket in the center of the table. In front of the ice-carving, formed in a large red gelatin salad, appeared a replica of the Fort Lee Officers' Club.

A similar buffet dinner will be prepared and served by future Food Service Management Classes upon completion of their schooling. Through this preparation, which is actually a part of their course, practical experience is gained by the potential club officers as well as a pleasant eating experience by the guests.

Col. and Mrs. Wheelchel Entertain

■ AUBURN, ALA. The officers of the Army ROTC at Alabama Polytechnic Institute were entertained at cocktails and a buffet dinner, at the home of the PMS&T, Col. W. W. Wheelchel and Mrs. Wheelchel, following the Auburn-Florida State football game. Among the guests attending was Col. Phillip Greene, PMS&T at Florida State.

Club Hears Mrs. Thomas

■ ROBINS AFB, GA. Mrs. Charles E. Thomas, Jr., wife of Major General Thomas, Fourteenth Air Force Commander, spoke at the monthly meeting of the Robins AFB Women's Club, on 10 Nov. "Following a Hobby Around the World" was the subject Mrs. Thomas chose and presented in a most interesting discussion.

A SERVICE FAMILY, INDEED!

It's difficult to argue with Capt. Robert H. Hoisington, USA, of Ft. Benning, Ga., when he says he's from a military family.

Captain Hoisington, whose father is retired Col. Gregory Hoisington, has a brother who is a colonel, a sister who is a major and two other sisters who are married to Army officers.

His wife, the former Dolores Archamdesu of L'Anse, Mich., was an Army Nurse for three and a half years before she married the Captain in June, 1950. He now commands Company I, 30th Infantry Regiment.

His brother, Col. Perry M. Hoisington, USAF, is in Naples. One of his three sisters is WAC Maj. Elizabeth P. Hoisington, on duty at the Presidio in San Francisco, Calif.

His other sisters are Mrs. James Maertens, wife of Maj. James Maertens of Alexandria, Va., and Mrs. C. R. Smith, wife of Capt. C. R. Smith of the 1st Infantry Division in Germany.

Captain Hoisington, USMA '50, is the father of a three-year-old daughter, Mary Elizabeth, and a one-year-old daughter, Margaret Ann.

Mrs. Hubler Elected

■ MATHER FIELD, CALIF. Mrs. Marion F. Hubler has been elected president of the Mather AFB NCO Wives' Club and will succeed Mrs. Fred Nisewanger.

Other incoming officers are: Mesdames William F. Neff, vice president; C. D. Green, recording secretary; Metro Cymbalak, corresponding secretary; Nisewanger, treasurer; Calvin Blackburn, assistant treasurer; Joseph Paine, auditor, and Alton Schneider, custodian of the club-sponsored Mather Thrift Shop.

Marine Squadron Is Home

■ CHERRY POINT, N. C. Marine Attack Squadron-211 has returned home after a six-month training cruise aboard the USS Wright in the Far East.

Benning Women Collect $506

■ FT. BENNING, GA. The Woman's Club collected $506.36 from the sale of poppies on Poppy Day. Mrs. Charles T. Clagett, chairman of the sales for the Post, reports the money has been turned over to the American Legion Auxiliary, in Columbus. Members of the Club committee handling the sale included Mesdames William Beachler, Theodore Mataxis, Howard T. Cohen and John H. Wooden, in addition to Mrs. Clagett.

Mrs. William I. Russell and Mrs. Robert E. Holman took top honors in the pairs competition of the Woman's Club duplicate bridge group, with second place honors going to Mrs. Paul F. Roberts and Mrs. Wilbur S. Hilton. The duplicate bridge group will hold a Club championship and women pairs competition annually.

Fashion Show at Bragg

■ FT. BRAGG, N. C. Fall fashions were the keynote of the luncheon given by the ladies of the 1st Logistical Command on Wednesday, 13 Oct., in the ballroom of the Officers' Club. Serving on the fashion show committee were: Mesdames B. F. Hillman, E. L. Thompson, and J. W. Boucher.

Guests included Mrs. J. P. Cleland, wife of Major General Cleland, Commanding General of Fort Bragg and the XVIII Airborne Corps; Mrs. Derrill M. Daniel, wife of Brigadier General Daniel; Mrs. W. H. Lewis of Charleston, W. Va., sister of Mrs. Earnest A. Bixby, wife of Brigadier General Bixby, Commanding General of the 1st Logistical Command; and Mrs. W. H. Dawson, wife of Colonel Dawson, Commanding Officer of the 305th Logistical Command.

The tables were attractively decorated in small black dressmaker torsos, miniature black and white French poodles, and gaily decorated hat boxes. Background music was furnished by Mrs. H. L. Kinne.

Colonels' Wives Open

O'Seas Shopping Service

A new shopping service for military families overseas has been established by the wives of two colonels.

They are Bessie B. Barbour, wife of Col. T. E. P. Barbour, USA-Ret., and Marion W. Conner, wife of Col. G. F. Conner, USA.

Their offices are located at 3601 N. 27th Street, Arlington, Va.

Mrs. Barbour has had many years experience in shopping for wives of the Foreign Service of the State Department. Both are well acquainted with needs of Service families overseas as a result of first-hand experience.

Mrs. Barbour and Mrs. Conner will maintain a personal file on every overseas patron, containing such information as measurements, color preferences, activities and geographical location, as well as information on children's clothing.

The organizers of the new shopping service believe it can be of considerable assistance to military families abroad who desire personalized shopping assistance.

Secretary: Mrs. Richard Kreiner, Recording Secretary: Mrs. Hilmer Johnson, Treasurer: Mrs. W. F. Kirschbaum, Vice Chairman; and Mrs. Roland S. Watts, Publicity Chairman. Mrs. W. J. Deyo, Jr., wife of Brig. Gen. W. J. Deyo, Port Commander, was re-elected Honorary President; and Mrs. W. M. Gaige, Jr., wife of Colonel Gaige, Deputy Port Commander, was re-elected Advisor.

The elections followed a luncheon at which the Joshua Troupe from the Fairmont Hotel entertained the ladies with Hawaiian, Samoan, and Tahitian dances. Each lady attending received a lei of orchids flown especially from Hawaii.

Maj. Gen. Gorby Visits

■ DENVER, COLO. Maj. Gen. Alvin L. Gorby, Deputy Commander of Walter Reed Army Hospital, Washington, D. C., spent the past weekend with his son, Capt. Earl W. Gorby and family of Fitzsimons Army Hospital.

Released from school by the Teachers' Convention, the Fitzsimons Army Hospital Girl Scout Troop No. 469, had a busy week, recently, when they enjoyed a holiday at Seaman's Harbor at Evergreen, Colo., accompanied by Mrs. Barney Seaman and Mrs. Stratton Storey, scout leaders, and Mrs. Edwin Peterson. Saturday found them back at Fitzsimons where they helped the committee with decorations and assisted at the very successful post-wide Halloween Party held at the Teen-Club.

Frontier Days Party Hits Pay Dirt

■ FT. KNOX, KY. "Powder River let 'er buck," the saga of the Old Wild West, was relived at the recent "Frontier Days" celebration sponsored here by the Women's Club. Sadowski Field House was transformed into a frontier mining town, replete with the Gold Nugget Dance Hall, Tombstone Hoosegow, Wells Fargo, a Chuck Wagon, and several other establishments. Each establishment was staffed by representatives of major commands, and each was trying to "strike it rich."

End result was that almost $1,100.00 in "gold nuggets" was realized, and will be turned over to Ft. Knox civic projects.

Most of the more than 900 guests at the celebration came attired in Western regalia. Those who didn't, found themselves in the "Tombstone Hoosegow" until they handed over a bit of "silver dust" to the mustachioed sheriffs who manned the barred door.

Brig. Gen. John L. Ryan, Jr., USA, Chief of Staff of The Armored Center, announced the names of winners of various door and floor prizes.

KLONDIKE KAKERY — Mrs. Willis T. Smith and Capt. Lelon Lancaster inspect a cake during the Frontier Days Party at Ft. Knox, Ky., which raised more than $1100.

13th HOLE IS LUCKY

The destroyer USS Hunt has reported that Seaman Donald E. Henderson scored a 187-yard hole-in-one at the Royal Colombo Golf Club in Ceylon during a stopover there on a world cruise.

Notes On Retired Service Folk

Combat Educator Given Award At Retirement

Col. Francois D'Eliseu, a physical training and hand-to-hand combat expert, was awarded a Third Army Certificate of Achievement during retirement ceremonies 30 Oct. at Ft. Bragg, N. C.

The 56-year-old Infantry officer, who served as Director of the Special Forces Department of the Psychological Warfare School until a recent illness, was cited for developing Special Forces training within the Army in the award presented by Maj. Gen. Joseph P. Cleland, Commander of Ft. Bragg and the XVIII Airborne Corps.

He also established three schools in France, the Battle Conditioning School in Fontainebleau, the Combat School at Pau, and the Combat School in Antibes. He later was assigned to Ft. Shafter, Hawaii, to set up a new testing program. He was awarded the Turkish Parachutist's Badge, the first ever received by an American, for his work as Commandant for four years of the Guerrilla School.

Col. Kendall, PX Leader Retires After Eur. Duty

At a recent luncheon at the Hotel Biltmore, N. Y., Maj. Gen. H. L. Peckham, USA, Army and Air Force Exchange Service Chief, and civilian executives of Hq. AAFES, feted Col. William H. Kendall, USA, who was retiring from the Army with 30 years' service.

Immediately prior to retirement, Colonel Kendall had been Chief of the European Exchange System, an assignment he assumed in October 1951 after four years as Chief of the Army and Air Force Exchange Service.

Terming Colonel Kendall "the father of the modern postwar Exchange System" General Peckham paid tribute to the many improvements in exchange service initiated during Colonel Kendall's tour as Exchange Service Chief. He stated that Colonel Kendall was a pioneer in establishing the modern concept of exchange service management.

Colonel and Mrs. Kendall are temporarily residing in New York. His future plans have not yet been announced.

Col. Leland Smith Joins Korean Foundation

Col. Leland S. Smith, USA-Ret., for the past four years Commandant of the Adjutant General School who retired from active service on 30 Sept., has accepted a position as Administrative Director to the American-Korean Foundation located at 345 East 46th Street, New York 17, N. Y.

Maj. Gen. C. W. Christenberry, USA-Ret., former Chief of Staff of the Eighth Army is President of this Foundation.

COL. N. E. BORDEN, Commanding Officer, Camp Hanford, Wash., left, and Mrs. George M. Nolen, place Eagles on the shoulders of Col. George M. Nolen, Camp Hanford Post Ordnance Officer, prior to retirement ceremonies at Camp Hanford. Colonel Nolen has been Hanford Post Ordnance Officer since March 1953. He retired 31 Oct., upon completion of over 30 years' service.

Maj Gen. Irving Praised

President Eisenhower this week hailed the appointment of Maj. Gen. Frederick A. Irving, USA (ret.), former superintendent of West Point, as president of ACTION, a new non-profit citizens' group whose aim is to eradicate and prevent slums.

"After long experience and association with him in the Army," the President said, "I wouldn't hesitate to write a rather large blank check as to the character of performance you will get out of him."

The President noted, jokingly, "Old soldiers are, after all, supposed to fade away. We just seem to reappear."

Maj. Gen. Irving

Col. Talbot Heads Office

Charles H. Brunell, Sales Manager-Vice President of Cook Electric Company, Chicago, Ill., has announced the opening of new offices at Room 805 Continental Building, 1012 Fourteenth Street, N.W., Washington 5, D. C.

This office will be headed by Col. William M. Talbot, USAF-Ret., who comes to Cook Electric Company from the Federal Civil Defense Administration where for the last three years he headed the Warning and Communications Division. Colonel Talbot will represent the Diaphlex, MagniLastic, Wirecom, Plymold, Alrmold, and Electronic Systems Divisions of the company.

You'll get special attention from Journal advertisers—they cater to Service personnel.

Navy's Personnel Head

Will Visit Pacific

Assistant Secretary of the Navy for Personnel and Reserve Forces, Albert Pratt, will visit overseas bases in the Pacific and Far East areas, including Korea, and units of the U. S. Seventh Fleet at sea from 22 Nov. to 10 Dec.

RADM. John C. Daniel, USN, Assistant Chief of Naval Personnel, and Capt. J. D. Lamade, USN, Deputy Chief of Information for the Navy Department, will accompany Secretary Pratt, along with Capt. J. H. Mini, USN, his Naval Aide, and other members of his staff.

The itinerary includes stops at Hawaii, Kwajalein, Guam, Manila, Formosa, Okinawa, Atsugi, Japan, and Midway. The Manila stop will include a visit to ships of the Seventh Fleet at sea. From Japan, the Secretary will fly to Korea primarily to visit the First Marine Division and the First Marine Air Wing.

Pentagon Prepares New Billion Dollar Reserve Plan

Burgess, will be related directly to continuation of the present two-year draft service. This authority expires next July and needs to be renewed.

Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson told a news conference this week he hopes the new Reserve Forces legislation and the draft extension are approved by April, but many observers who recall previous action on Reserve legislation predict that it will probably be late May or June before the controversial legislation is approved.

The Selection Service law will be modified, according to present proposals, to provide for thousands of men to serve "short tours" of active duty in the Army and Marine Corps.

These tours would be of six months duration, although there has also been talk of a shorter tour of four months.

Upon completion of the short tour, a draftee would be given a firm Reserve obligation, possibly of six years. He would be explicitly required to give satisfactory service at weekly drills and at summer encampments—probably of two weeks duration, maybe more—or else face penalties, possibly to be reintroduced for active service.

Pentagon officials feel certain that Congress will vote to put teeth into legislation requiring compulsory service in the Reserve or National Guard as pertains to the men who serve the short tours.

They are less confident that the Senate and House would vote to penalize "veterans," that is men with satisfactory completion of two years active service who did not participate actively in the Reserve program.

As now, the two-year draftees under the new plan would continue to have a Reserve obligation. In an emergency, they would be called to active duty, but after those with the shorter tours of active service.

Thus, the Service Callable Reserve would be composed largely of men who served perhaps six months active duty and who are now participating in the Reserve program and who are subject to penalty if they don't.

The Selective Callable Reserve would be composed of those who had served on active duty for two years and who will be urged—though not required—to participate in the Reserve program.

Defense authorities are hopeful that thousands of young men who served for two years or more on active duty will volunteer for service in the Reserve and National Guard, particularly in Non-Com ranks.

For this reason, heavy stress will be placed on benefits such as pay, promotion and retirement to encourage a high rate of volunteers.

The efficiency of the Reserve Forces will depend in large measure on how many volunteers are obtained.

Defense authorities state, however, that if Congress votes the compulsory service—with teeth in the law—for the short-termers that there will be in this action the makings for an improved Reserve.

As has been the case throughout the discussions on the Reserve Forces, the basic requirements are still: (1) continuation of the draft, with modifications; and (2) compulsory Reserve service.

Present plans call for the Army and Marine Corps alone to take the short-tour personnel. For this reason, Congress will be asked to approve additional training manpower for the Army and

Marine Dispute

commands the Marine Corps and is directly responsible to the Secretary of the Navy for its administration, discipline, internal organization, unit training, requirements, efficiency and readiness, and for the total performance of the Marine Corps.

e. The Commandant of the Marine Corps when performing the functions set out in paragraph d, is not a part of the permanent command structure of the Chief of Naval Operations. However, there must be a close cooperative relationship between the Chief of Naval Operations as the senior military officer and the Commandant of the Marine Corps who has command responsibility over that organization.

f. The Commandant of the Marine Corps has an additional direct responsibility to the Chief of Naval Operations for the readiness and performance of those elements of the operating forces of the Marine Corps assigned to the operating forces of the Navy. Such Marine forces, when so assigned, are under the command of the Chief of Naval Operations.

g. Any administrative instructions in conflict with the foregoing will be revised to conform to this policy.

Thomas S. Gates, Jr.

INDUSTRY * FINANCE

Pentagon Prepares Rules For Cost Allowances

The new proposed principles of cost allowances—Part 2, Section XV, Armed Services Procurement Regulations—will be submitted to industry for comment before the end of the year, according to Pentagon procurement officials.

Full agreement among the Services has not yet been achieved, it is reported. Most controversial problems concern depreciation, compensation for personal services, interest, and training and educational expenses.

Speculation is that allowances for depreciation probably will follow the principles of the new tax law. Stock bonus plans may be allowed in certain circumstances.

Although the Navy is said to support it, the likelihood appears that profit-sharing plans will be disallowed.

Reimbursement for interest has the full support of industry but probably will never become a regulation.

Training expenses in trade schools may be admissible items of cost but expenses of higher education probably will be disallowed.

ARDC Releases Details On "Matador" Launcher

Details of a newly developed launching device for the Martin B-61 "Matador" missile have been released by Air Research and Development Command Headquarters, Baltimore, Md.

The launching device, a specially constructed semi-trailer called a "Zero Length Launcher," with supporting equipment operates in an area of only 100 feet square, without the use of a runway. Only one part of the new launcher moves during the operation, and then only a few inches.

The Zero Length Launcher, developed by the Glenn L. Martin Company and ARDC's Wright Air Development Center, is mobile and can be used in any area; it costs less to manufacture than any other launcher now in use.

It consists of a 39-foot tandem axle semi-trailer weighing 35,000 pounds without the missile, a motor generator, blower, hydraulic pump and a wing rack. Though a self-contained unit, it is supported by auxiliary equipment, such as a 28-foot, 15,000 pound transport semi-trailer, a five-ton tactical truck tractor and a 20-ton truck-mounted crane.

The missile is mounted on the launcher by a three-point suspension. Two ball and socket supports at the front point the weapon upward at a 15-degree angle. The rear support is in the form of a bolt that keeps the missile from moving until full power is attained at which time the bolt shears and allows the missile to take off.

At this point the front supports swing forward a few inches and drop away from the missile. This allows clearance for the booster bottle attached to the rear of the Matador. Launching can be done from any hard-packed spot, though concrete, macadam or pierced-steel planks are prepared as a launching pad.

At the site, the hydraulic jack raises the front from the ground in order to make the platform as immovable as possible. The equipment is checked and a wire which controls the missile during launching is attached to its side. When the missile takes off, the cord pulls loose from its side.

After the missile engine has been started and brought up to full power, the booster bottle is ignited. The tremendous power released, then serves to shear the bolt holding the rear of the missile, and the Matador takes off on its mission.

The Glenn L. Martin Company, which manufactured the missile, also designed the launcher, subcontracting its actual construction to Freuhauf. Union Switch and Signal Company installed the electrical and hydraulic equipment.

You'll get special attention from Journal advertisers—they cater to Service personnel.

AFA-Backed Air Logistics Conference Scheduled

The Air Force Association will sponsor an Air Logistics Conference 16 Dec. at Andrews AFB, Washington, D. C., to introduce "a new and modern air logistics concept with far reaching implications on national defense, the national economy, and international relations."

Principal speakers at the conference will include Air Force Secretary Harold E. Talbott, General Nathan F. Twining, Air Force Chief of Staff, and Donald W. Douglas, sr., President of the Douglas Aircraft Company. Also attending will be leaders of industry, government, Congress and civilian organizations interested in the logistics problem.

Six major presentations will introduce the new concept in terms of national requirement, technical feasibility, economic advantages, military strategy, commercial implications and diplomatic impact.

The conference will signal the advent of high-speed intercontinental transport aircraft, electronic computation and transmission of supply information, new methods of packaging and handling cargo, and other aspects of a modern air logistics system.

Col. McRay Plant Rep. At Marietta Facility

Col. Edward J. McRay, jr., USAF, has been named Air Force Plant Representative at Government Aircraft Plant No. 6, Marietta, Ga., operated by the Lockheed Aircraft Corporation's Georgia Division. He recently completed two and a half years duty as commanding officer of the 6160th Maintenance and Supply group of the Southern Defense Command in Japan at Itazuke, Japan.

Colonel McRay's family has been residing in Ferndale, Mich., just north of Detroit. Mrs. McRay, the former Miss Doris Knighton, is a native of Great Neck, N. Y. The McRays have a son, Gary, 7, and a daughter, Lynn, 5.

Convair To Expedite Third Navy Sea-Dart

Convair will "spare no effort to continue development of the Sea-Dart," the high speed Navy water-based fighter that takes off and lands on hydro-skis, General Joseph T. McNarney, USAF-Ret., president of Convair Division of General Dynamics Corporation, has assured the Navy Bureau of Aeronautics.

The YF2Y-1 Sea-Dart was lost in an accident over San Diego Bay 4 Nov. The pilot, Charles E. Richbourg, was killed. Cause of the accident is being investigated by a Navy-Convair board of technical experts.

General McNarney's wire was in answer to a telegram from RADM. Apollo Soucek, chief of the Bureau of Aeronautics, expressing his sympathy for the loss and urging that development of the Sea-Dart be pressed to the "greatest extent possible."

The original Sea-Dart, the XF2Y-1, first flew in April 1953, and currently is being used for ski development work. Convair has assigned extra work crews to expedite completion of a third Sea-Dart. The new plane is expected to begin flight testing within two months.

Defense To Help Miami 'Aerorama' Air Show

The second annual Miami Aerorama, twice the size of last year, is scheduled to be held 19-23 Jan. at Miami, Fla.

Last year 50 booths were set up in a tent, augmenting airlines' outdoor exhibits. This year the huge hangar of the Air Reserve Training Center at Miami International Airport will be used for 128 booths.

The Defense Department has pledged full co-operation, according to William Davenport, general chairman, with the latest declassified equipment of all services to be displayed.

Defense Dept. Will Ask More '56 Money Than Was Voted For Current Fiscal Year

It is estimated that the Services will spend $35.5 billion in FY '55, which compares with $40.1 billion the previous year and $43.6 billion in FY '53.

For the 12 months ending next 30 June, the Army will spend about $9.2 billion, a drop of $1 billion in spending from the Administration forecast in January. The Navy will spend about $10.3 billion, with the Air Force revised spending estimate put at $15.5 billion instead of the early $16.3 billion forecast.

Commenting on the spread between new money requests made to Congress and the higher spending figures which result from the availability of carry-over funds, Mr. Wilson said this week that "we are getting fairly close to a time where the new money appropriated will be equal to the expenditures."

As Mr. Wilson and his top budget lieutenant, Assistant Defense Secretary W.

J. McNeill, wind up work on the '56 budget estimates for final Presidential consideration, Pentagon observers have been impressed with the apparent lack of dispute in the Services on the fiscal proposals.

As has been reported previously, the new budget is not expected to make any significant changes in either combat units of the Services or manpower.

The Army will add a number of combat divisions, but these will be the replacements for present training divisions. Army manpower for FY '56, not including any changes that will be made as a result of the Reserve Forces plan, will be about the same as planned for the end of FY '55, about 1,173,000.

Similarly, the Navy, Air Force and Marine Corps are expected to remain at virtually the same strength with which they end the current fiscal year.

Plans Told For Aerial Lift In "Shock Wave"

Troop Carrier Units of the Eighteenth Air Force will be deployed to Puerto Rico next month to perform a trans-island airlift of the Army's 296th Regimental Combat Team in connection with Operation Shock Wave.

Shock Wave is an island defense maneuver to be conducted by U. S. Army forces in Puerto Rico.

Purpose of the airlift exercise, one of the largest combined Air Force and Army operations ever held in the Caribbean, is to provide air movement training for units and personnel of both services. The combat team, numbering approximately 2,500 officers and men, will be air moved with vehicles, supplies and weapons from Ramey Air Force Base to the Roosevelt Roads Naval Air Station as part of an island defense problem.

Dates for the exercise are 1 to 15 Dec. The airlift will be performed by C-119 Flying Boxcars of the 456th Troop Carrier Wing at Charleston AFB, S. C. with support from the 463d Troop Carrier Wing, Ardmore AFB, Oklahoma and the 464th Troop Carrier Wing of Pope AFB, N. C. Operational communications facilities will be furnished by the 4418th Communications Group of Donaldson AFB, S. C. Col. James L. Daniel, jr., USAF, 456th Wing Commander, has been designated task force commander of all Tactical Air Command troop carrier elements participating.

Maneuver director of the Army operation is Brig. Gen. Kenneth S. Sweaney, USA, Commander of U. S. Army Forces in Puerto Rico. The regimental combat team is under the command of Col. Frank R. Harrison, USA.
